Nixon Seeks Blend . . .

Fuel Rationing Powers Asked

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon formally asked Congress Thursday to blend his emergency energy proposals into pending legislation and to give him standby authority to impose fuel and gasoline rationing.

The five-page message sent to Capitol Hill late Thursday followed up on his televised report to the nation Wednesday night on how his administration tends to cope with the energy shortages.

After tracing administrative steps he announced Wednesday night he listed steps he wants included in legislation now before Congress.

They include authorization to cut government and industry business hours, reduce highway speed limits to 50 miles per hour, temporarily relax antipollution laws, adjust air and other transportation schedules, allow nuclear power plants to operate for 18 months without public hearings on license applications, permit year-around Daylight Saving Time and authorize full production from government oil reserves.

In addition, Nixon asked for congressional enactment before December of standby authority to allocate and ration energy supplies.

Without giving specifics, Nixon asked also for additional authority to make greater use of federal highway funds for mass transit capital improvements.

And he said that "during the duration of the energy emergency," the Federal Power Commission should have authority to suspend price regulation of natural gas at the wellhead.

Again without giving specifics, Nixon asked for "authority now contained in the Defense Production Act, the Economic Stabilization Act and the Export Administration Act, even though those acts may have otherwise expired."

The requests went far beyond those in an emergency energy package proposed by Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., chairman of the Senate Interior Committee.

"I believe we would be deluding ourselves if we think that we can entirely avoid granting variances which may impinge upon primary standards," said Russell E. Train, administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency.

Jackson's measure would allow the administration to grant, on an individual plant basis, temporary variances from federally set emissions standards. But in no case would the bill allow emissions to exceed national primary standards.

The bill says the administration could take no action that "would have any adverse impact on public health, safety or well being."

The powers granted the president by the Jackson bill would expire one year after passage of the legislation.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, said he would propose amendments "that will allow Congress to recapture the powers it will delegate." "We've been guilty of transferring great gobs of power in recent years," said Church.

The major provisions of the Jackson bill:

—The federal and state governments would be required to devise plans to reduce energy consumption by up to 25 per cent.

—The president would be required to draft an emergency energy rationing and conservation program which would establish a plan for rationing scarce fuels.

—At the direction of the president, electric generating plants capable of conversion will be ordered to burn coal.

—The federal government would provide incentives for the use of public transportation, including priority rationing of fuel for mass transit systems.

The House, meanwhile, was told that its Commerce Committee will begin hearings on year-around Daylight Saving Time next Tuesday and other emergency energy legislation the next day.

State Allows Acupuncture As Experimental Practice

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the last article in a series about Nebraskans and acupuncture.)

By JOEL THORSON
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

The relative unavailability of acupuncture treatment in Nebraska is the result of a scarcity of trained personnel, rather than any stifling on the part of the state, according to State Bureau of Examining Boards Director Rex Higley.

There are no full-time acupuncturists practicing in the state of Nebraska. The only person practicing the ancient Oriental art of healing by use of needles is Dr. David Rosenberg, an Omaha anesthesiologist who administers acupuncture treatments experimentally to about four patients a week.

Several dozen Nebraskans have traveled to Kansas City, Mo., for treatment at two acupuncture clinics operating there. Many have come back telling of relief from a variety of ailments. Some have complained of the difficulty and expense of going to Kansas City for the treatments.

No one except Dr. Rosenberg, Higley said, has come before the Board of Examiners in Medicine and Surgery to demonstrate proficiency in acupuncture and seek premission to practice it in accordance with the terms of a board policy allowing its use on an experimental basis.

Information Sought

There have been requests for information from some out-of-state acupuncturists seeking to practice in the state, Higley said. But not all are of unquestionable legitimacy, he added, and none has yet come before the board.

The current threefold board policy states:

"Acupuncture by statute falls under the practice of medicine and surgery.

"Acupuncture is not sufficiently well understood to be accepted in the general practice of medicine and surgery.

"Acupuncture in this state is presently restricted to duly licensed physicians engaged in research at medical schools or other clinical settings after having acquired the permission of the 'Board,' medical school authorities, and the review of the research by a peer committee."

However, that is an interim policy which doesn't "close the door," Higley said.

"We're not against this," he added. "Acupuncture has some apparent unknown but interesting uses in the alleviation of pain.

"But we feel a strong obligation . . . to protect the public from the potential for abuse," Higley said. "We're sure of one thing: we shouldn't allow someone who is not a licensed practitioner" — whether M.D. or osteopath — to engage in it.

One concern, he said, is that its use in some cases might mask pain symptoms of an ailment "amenable" to traditional treatment.

"We're not precluding any physician who can demonstrate knowledgeability and proficiency in the field from using this modality," Higley said.

In short, he said, the board's policy is to "wait and see, take a look, experiment under controlled situations and see what acupuncture is and if it's of value."

The board may, he said, "amend this policy from time to time as good medicine would dictate." He observed that extensive study by the federal government and educational institutions is underway.

In re-evaluating the policy, Higley said, the board "will probably watch HEW (the federal Department of Health, Education and Welfare) more closely than anybody else."

Neither the Nebraska Medical Association (NMA) nor the American Medical Association (AMA) has taken an official position on acupuncture, according to NMA President Dr. John D. Coe of Omaha.

"The only concern we have is that it would lend itself very much to quackery," said Dr. Coe, indicating that he was expressing his personal understanding of the consensus of medical opinion. "It would enable unscrupulous persons to prey upon the public.

"We're not against acupuncute," he said, "but we think it should be studied scientifically. If it's a worthwhile modality, we'll embrace it like everything else."

Accord May Lead To Mideast Talks

. . . Agreement Goes To U.N.

By The Associated Press

Israel and Egypt both have agreed to a five-point cease-fire agreement that could produce peace talks on a Middle East settlement by the end of the year, U.S. officials said.

The officials, with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger in Saudi Arabia on the last leg of a Mideast trip, met with newsmen early Friday and said the agreement still had to be submitted to U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim.

The agreement, the officials said, would ease tensions by providing an exchange of prisoners and giving the Egyptians access to their encircled 3rd Army on the east bank of the Suez Canal and to the city of Suez on the west bank.

The officials said the agreement calls for readjustment of the cease-fire line to conform with terms of the Oct. 22 U.N. cease-fire resolution.

Israeli and Egyptian officers met Thursday to discuss a new cease-fire line in accordance with the reported cease-fire plan, Israeli Defense Ministry sources said Thursday in Tel Aviv.

The sources said Maj. Gen. Aharon Yariv, a former military intelligence chief and a top adviser to Premier Golda Meir, met an unidentified Egyptian officer on Kilometer 101 of the Cairo-to-Suez road.

Israeli and Egyptian forces there are separated behind barbed wire by only 10 feet of no-man's land. U.N. peacekeepers are along the Suez Canal front to prevent fighting.

The U.S. officials, describing Washington as "the trustee" of the new cease-fire agreement, said action to implement the agreement could begin in a matter of days.

At the United Nations in New York, it was learned that U.S. Ambassador John A. Scali had an appointment with Secretary-General Waldheim on Friday morning, apparently to give him a copy of the agreement. In the meantime, Waldheim had no comment.

The U.S. officials said it was understood that the agreement also would provide for the lifting of a blockade that has barred Israeli ships from going from the Red Sea to the Persian Gulf.

Announcement of the agreement followed Kissinger's trip to Morocco, Tunisia, Egypt, Jordan and Saudi Arabia, where he conferred with Arab leaders.

An assistant secretary of state, Joseph J. Sisco, flew to Tel Aviv Wednesday to tell Mrs. Meir of Kissinger's talks with President Anwar Sadat of Egypt.

Kissinger met for 90 minutes Thursday night with King Faisal of Saudi Arabia, the largest Mideast oil-producing nation. The Arabs have cut off oil shipments to the United States and the Netherlands and have cut back shipments to other countries by as much as 25 per cent.

The U.S. officials with Kissinger said Syria had not endorsed the agreement.

U.S. officials were so certain of Cairo's approval of the new agreement that they said the package did not have to be submitted to Sadat now that Israel has accepted it.

Before the U.S. officials announced the new agreement, the Israeli state radio broadcast a report that Israel had accepted a five-point compromise worked out by the United States and Egypt.

The points of the plan, the radio said, were:

— A prisoner of war exchange as soon as possible.

— A U.N.-supervised supply corridor through Israeli lines to the encircled Egyptian 3rd Army. No weapons are to pass through nor is it to be in any way controlled by Israel.

— Ending of the Egyptian blockade of the Bab el Mandeb Strait, Israel's only outlet to the Indian Ocean.

— Negotiations between Israeli and Egyptian military commanders to arrange a more convenient cease-fire line.

— Direct peace negotiations between Israel and Egypt once the first four points are fulfilled.

The plan, as given by the radio, dropped earlier Egyptian insistence that Israel pull back to the original Oct. 22 cease-fire line as a preliminary to any other steps toward peace, including an exchange of prisoners.

Campaign Set By Chambers

Omaha (AP) — State Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha announced Thursday that he is a candidate for governor in 1974.

Nebraska's only black legislator said that his campaign plans are to "run like Jesse Owens for the governorship."

Owens was an outstanding black star in the 1936 Olympics.

Chambers plans to place his name on the ballot through petition rather than by running in the Republican or Democratic primaries. He said by doing so he will avoid having to register in either party.

Crash Fatal To Two On Snow-Slick Road

Snow-slick U.S. 81 south of Columbus was blamed for a two-vehicle accident Thursday, claiming two lives.

The State Patrol said the two were Albert Towns, 82, and his wife, Eunice, 76, of West Duluth, Minn.

Trooper Robert Cruise of David City, who investigated, said the southbound car skidded across the center line and struck a northbound car in the left rear. The man and wife in that car, Jacob Schopp Jr. 58, and his wife, Clare, 58, Lehr, N.D., escaped injury.

The southbound car continued about 300 feet down the highway, into a west ditch, slammed headon into a tree and spun round facing the north, coming to rest against the tree.

The dashboard of the car pinned the victims up against the seatbacks and a farmer manning a tractor with a scoop pryed the vehicle away from the tree to provide access to the victims.

The man was still breathing after arriving at Behlen Memorial Hospital in Columbus. His wife was pronounced dead at the scene by Polk County Coroner Philip Berg.

A car-pedestrian accident claimed the life of an elderly man early Thursday evening at Pierce.

Ernest W. Melcher, 87, of Pierce, was killed when he was struck by a car as he was crossing Highway 98 at the east edge of town.

Authorities said the car was driven by Donald W. Miles of Pierce.

Meanwhile, a one-car accident near Blair Wednesday night was fatal to William F. Steyer, 33, of Blair.

The State Patrol said Steyer's southbound car hit a bank and overturned on U.S. 73 a mile north of Blair.

Snow, Sleet, Fog Make State Driving Hazardous

Snow, sleet and fog dominated Nebraska's weather Thursday, causing hazardous driving conditions in the northeast and north central parts of the state.

By late Thursday, the snow depth at Omaha's Eppley Airport was three inches with unofficial reports of four to six inches of snow in western portions of that city.

Columbus received 2½ inches of snow with lesser amounts at Valentine, Norfolk, Ainsworth and Mullen.

Snow fell in an area south of a line from Valentine to just north of Norfolk to Omaha and north of a line from Omaha to just north of Lincoln to near Grand Island and Broken Bow.

In the area around North Platte, precipitation was in the form of freezing rain.

Lincoln's moisture was limited to very light snow at times throughout the day.

Caution was urged for motorists driving in the snow areas.

The State Roads Department late Thursday said highways in the Omaha area were wet and slushy, while there was spotted ice on roads in the Broken Bow area. Some snowpacked highways were reported in the Ainsworth vicinity.

Friday's forecast calls for somewhat warmer temperatures throughout the state.

NU Issues Omaha Tech School Invitation

By MILAN WALL
Star Staff Writer

The University of Nebraska Thursday invited the Omaha Technical Community College to discuss possible joint programming and use of a proposed downtown education center in Omaha.

The invitation was issued by NU President D. B. Varner to Omaha Board of Education member Dorothy Beavers as both attended a meeting of the Nebraska Council for Coordination of Postsecondary Education.

Saying he was speaking for the Board of Regents and University of Nebraska at Omaha (UNO) Chancellor Ronald Roskens, Varner said:

"We have no reluctance or hostility about working with the Omaha Technical Community College."

But he said he sensed "an enormous gap" in communications and pledged NU "will begin building a bridge and go more than halfway."

Varner's invitation was issued after Mrs. Beavers, with obvious emotion, hinted that the Omaha School Board's efforts to cooperate with UNO had been ignored and suggested that Omaha technical programs deserve the same business support UNO has apparently had for the downtown center.

She said the Omaha tech programs, governed by the school board, have "had working conditions evident at the Medical Center." But she said, in apparent reference to UNO, that there've "been overtures made for other things" that "have not been followed through."

She said "something should be negotiated," but told the members of the council that she could say no more with a news reporter present.

Her remarks prompted NU Regent Kermit Hansen to say, "I get emotional about this negotiation."

If there have been requests to UNO or the university system for inclusion in discussions about the Riverfront proposal, "I am not aware of it," he said.

And, Hansen said, he wanted to make clear that "99% of the stories in the (Omaha) World-Herald had no relation to UNO" plans. "They came out of the Riverfront office," he said.

He said he noted architects' drawings in the Omaha paper of a "multi-facility concept," but said: "That's not part of the university concept."

Mrs. Beavers had said the Omaha Technical Community College, which operates out of schools and "storefront" centers, badly "needs a building" to help give it identity.

Varner, who said he was puzzled by the hint that the university had been uncooperative, repeated an earlier suggestion that a downtown center include use by both UNO and technical or community education programs.

He asked if there was any possibility UNO might provide non-technical courses as part of a joint venture with the technical college.

Other coordinating council members suggested that perhaps the Omaha technical programs would have better identity if the same school board did not serve both the elementary and the secondary schools and the two-year technical programs.

"You don't understand the urban setting," Mrs. Beavers replied.

The discussion ended with Regent Robert Koefoot of Grand Island, chairman of the council, suggesting that Omaha School Supt. Owen Knutson and UNO Chancellor Ronald Roskens be invited to the next coordinating council meeting. When others agreed, he said he would put that matter on the agenda.

The coordinating council is a voluntary organization which meets monthly to discuss matters common to the university, the technical community colleges and the four state colleges.

New Cease-Fire To Take Effect Within Few Days

(c) New York Times News Service

Riyadh, Saudi Arabia — Egypt and Israel have agreed on a new cease-fire arrangement that is expected to take effect within a few days and lead to full-scale peace negotiations by the end of the year, according to officials traveling with Secretary of State Kissinger. The officials, who confirmed that Israel had accepted the plan worked out by Kissinger and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, said it called for a supply corridor to the encircled Egyptian troops, a prompt exchange of prisoners, Israeli-Egyptian negotiations to adjust the Oct. 22 cease-fire line and later negotiations on a broader basis. (More on Page 1.)

Mood Changes In Tel Aviv

Tel Aviv — News of the new cease-fire agreement brought a dramatic, overnight change in the mood of Israel's leaders, according to sources close to the government, who said the atmosphere in Tel Aviv had switched from grim pessimism to ebullient optimism. The sources, who described Defense Minister Moshe Dayan as especially enthusiastic, said the cabinet had accepted the plan at a special morning session.

U.S. 'Won't Support Aggressor'

Cairo — As Egypt waited for Israel to begin lifting its siege of Suez City as part of the new cease-fire agreement, informed diplomatic sources in Cairo said Secretary of State Kissinger had told President Sadat that in the future the United States would not support any country that initiated fighting in the Middle East.

Tape Quality Poor — Nixon's Secretary

Washington — President Nixon's personal secretary, Rose Mary Woods, told Chief Judge John J. Sirica that the quality of the White House tapes was so poor that she could not make out some exchanges between the President and his visitors. (More on Page 2.)

AFL-CIO Demands Impeachment

Washington — The nation's largest labor organization began a formal nationwide campaign to demand the "immediate" impeachment of President Nixon. Officials of the AFL-CIO issued a strongly worded statement urging their 19.5 million members to make the House of Representatives "aware of the need for urgency" in the effort to remove the President from office.

Congress Begins Work On Energy Bill

Washington — With some of its own corridor lights dimmed to conserve electricity, Congress began work on legislation that would give the President many — but probably not all — of the emergency powers he wants to deal with the energy crisis. The measure sought by the President would empower him to relax environmental standards, reduce speed limits and regulate transportation schedules. (More on Page 1.)

Clean Meat Act's Administration Faulty

©The New York Times

Washington — The General Accounting Office reported Thursday that faulty administration of the Wholesome Meat Act of 1967 had resulted in acceptable ratings for many meat plants that did not comply with federal sanitation and inspection standards.

The agency, an investigatory arm of Congress, implied but did not specifically say that about 17% of the country's 15,000 intrastate plants had erroneously been given clean bills of health.

It called on the Agriculture Department to improve its criteria for rating state plants and for determining whether state inspection programs are in compliance with the federal law.

The Agriculture Department acknowledged the existence of shortcomings in the criteria and said steps were under way to correct them.

The 1967 act was designed to protect consumers from contaminated or misbranded meat marketed by plants operating exclusively within the states. It allowed states up to three years to impose and enforce standards equal to those already in effect for plants operating in interstate commerce, which are federally inspected.

The department has certified 40 state programs covering about 8,700 intrastate plants as "equal to" the federal program. About 6,200 plants in 10 states, Puerto Rico, Guam and the Virgin Islands have been brought under federal inspection because they did not have acceptable programs.

The GAO's findings were based on an investigation of 269 plants, selected at random from 2,143 intrastate plants operated in seven states. Of the seven states, California, Iowa, Maryland and Missouri were operating "equal to" programs while Kentucky, Minnesota and Nebraska were among the 10 states with all plants now subject to federal inspection.

The Agriculture Department rated 202 of the plants as acceptable and 67 as unacceptable.

Because of inadequate criteria, the GAO reported, the department's assessments of state inspection programs also "have lacked uniformity" and "its actions in dealing with the states have been inconsistent."

"The (inspection) service," it said, "needs to establish clear and objective criteria that can be applied uniformly in determining when a state is not maintaining an 'equal-to' Program and when a state is not maintaining an 'equal-to' program and when a state should be notified that the department is considering designating its plants for federal inspection.

"Such criteria should state the factors, including the percentage of a state's plants that must meet federal requirements, and the weight to be given each factor in such determinations."

The department said it was revising the criteria to comply with the GAO's recommendations.

Jaworski Says He Could Sue President Nixon

(c) Washington Star-News

Washington — Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski said Thursday he has full White House assurances that he may sue President Nixon to obtain confidential materials in the Watergate case.

In testimony before a House judiciary subcommittee, Jaworski, who took office Monday, said he was persuaded to take the job when White House Chief of Staff Alexander M. Haig Jr. told him he had "the absolute assurance" of the President that he could seek through the courts any materials not voluntarily surrendered by the White House.

The subcommittee is considering legislation that would create the post of special prosecutor outside the executive branch. Panel members have indicated they are anxious to assure that the new prosecuting attorney could not be fired by the President.

Jaworski, a Houston attorney, was appointed by the President while the House panel and a committee in the Senate were beginning to consider such legislation.

Miss Woods Says Some Tapes Lousy

Rose Mary Woods

Nixon's Secretary

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's personal secretary testified Thursday that the quality of some of the subpoenaed Watergate tapes is so bad that no one will be able to hear every word.

Rose Mary Woods told of laboring for nearly a month, sometimes until 3 and 4 in the morning, trying to transcribe Watergate conversations from recordings made surreptitiously in the President's offices.

Asked whether she was able to make a verbatim transcript, Miss Woods said: "I don't think any human being could. Maybe a technician. I could not get every word. I don't think anyone else. ." The sentence was left incomplete.

The trim Miss Woods, 55, a Nixon aide for 23 years, was a witness at a federal court hearing exploring the White House claim that two key Watergate conversations went unrecorded.

As the hearing in Sirica's court proceeded, the AFL-CIO began a nationwide lobbying campaign for the immediate impeachment of the President because Nixon has "given clear evidence he does not intend to resign." A statement said the President has "consistently lied to the American people."

Nixon said in a broadcast speech Wednesday night that he has "no intention whatever of walking away from the job I was elected to do."

At times irritated at repetitive questions during her nearly 1½ hours on the stand, Miss Woods cleared up the question of the so-called gap in one tape.

Gen. John C. Bennett, a top presidential aide, testified Wednesday that before he came to court Miss Woods said she found the gap in the conversation of April 16 between President Nixon and then-counsel John W. Dean III.

But Miss Woods testified that the conversation she was looking for was on another tape — and that it was found only Thursday morning by J. Fred Buzhardt, the acting counsel to the President.

"I'm perfectly satisfied there was no gap.", she said.

Nixon Signs School Lunch Bill

Washington (UPI) — President Nixon has signed into law a bill authorizing about $220 million in additional subsidies to help hold down the cost of school lunches, it was disclosed Thursday.

Congress passed the bill after some lawmakers warned that hundreds of thousands of children might be forced to quit buying school lunches because of cost increases made necessary by rising food prices.

Under the legislation, which the administration had opposed, the federal cash contribution to regular school lunches will rise from the present 8 cents per meal to 10 cents.

Iceland Accepts Cod War Pact

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) — The Icelandic Cabinet unanimously accepted Thursday a draft agreement designed to resolve the so-called cod war with Britain over fishing rights.

The draft, which would sharply cut the number of British trawlers in Icelandic waters, was worked out last month in London by Icelandic Premier Olafur Johannesson and British Prime Minister Edward Heath.

Fuel Czar Rides In Gas Guzzler

WASHINGTON (AP) — The morning after President Nixon urged Americans to conserve energy through personal sacrifice, former Colorado Gov. John A. Love emerged from his southwest Washington townhouse and stepped briskly into a waiting White House limousine.

The President's special assistant for energy affairs commutes to work each day in a chauffeured 1973 Chrysler New Yorker, making the 2.5-mile trip in 10 minutes.

Love altered the routine Thursday. Instead of turning in as he passed by the White House, he ordered the driver to go another mile to the CBS television studion, where he was interviewed.

Love agreed with an interviewer that a key factor in the energy crisis will be Americans' voluntary conservation efforts.

Virtually all of the elected and appointed top-level officials in Washington who formulate the nation's energy policies commute to work alone in automobile, an Associated Press survey conducted two days before Nixon's address showed.

Most of those entitled to chauffeured limousines use them. But at least three officials have switched from the traditional heavy, gas-guzzling vehicle to smaller, more efficient sedans and compacts.

Of the congressmen surveyed, most drive themselves to the Capitol. A few ride with aides. Some live nearby and walk.

Very few use Washington's buses.

In his address Nixon singled out Sens. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., and Paul J. Fannin, R-Ariz., for work already done on energy conservation legislation.

Jackson drives six miles from his home to the Capitol each day in a 1961 Chevrolet that an aide fondly called "that wreck."

Fannin drives three miles from his residence across the street from the Watergate complex in a 1973 Ford LTD. An aide said he traded in a Lincoln six months ago because of high gasoline consumption.

"I can tell you something about the Ford, too," he volunteered. "It likes gas."

White House officials say they operate 20 limousines in the conduct of presidential business. Love is one of several presidential aides ferried to and from home.

Barry Locke, public affairs director of Love's office, said the energy chief uses the limousine to save time.

Commerce Secretary Frederick B. Dent urged the nation's businessmen Oct. 25 to establish energy management programs, outlining some "minimal but essential" steps.

Dent rides four miles to work in the department's chauffeured 1973 Cadillac. Aides said a smaller car will go into service next July 1.

Two Men Arrested In Killings

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Two fugitives sought for questioning in the execution-style slaying of nine persons in a Central California home were arrested in Sacramento Thursday.

Douglas Gretzler, 22, of New York City, was apprehended during a search of the Clunie Hotel four blocks from the state Capitol.

Officers said they were tipped by a clerk who saw their pictures in the Sacramento Union.

His companion, Willie Luther Steelman, 28, of Lodi, Calif., surrendered at an apartment house 90 minutes later after police fired a tear gas canister into the shabby frame building.

Officers had assured Steelman in a broadcast message over a Sacramento rock music station that he would not be harmed, but he did not surrender until the tear gas was fired.

Then, Steelman emerged following a slim blonde girl identified later by police as 19-year-old Melinda Ann Kashula.

The girl tossed a pistol on the ground before coming out — as instructed by police in the broadcast over the radio station, KZAP.

Officers said Miss Kashula moved to the apartment about three weeks ago from Berkeley. It is an area that once was a fashionable residential section. Neighbors said Steelman also lived in the building.

Steelman appeared to have a black eye as he came out of the house.

The men and the girl were taken to police headquarters for questioning. They were to be taken later to Stockton, the seat of San Joaquin County where the massacre occurred.

Both men are also wanted on a two-count murder warrant in Phoenix, Ariz. and on a variety of other charges in Santa Rosa and Yolo County, Calif., officers said.

The victims in the Victor massacre included seven adults, all bound and gagged, and two children.

They were identified as Walter Parkin, 33, the owner of a grocery market in Victor; his wife, Joanne, 31; their children Lisa, 11, and Bobby 9; Richard A. Earl, a neighbor and accountant, Earl's wife, Wanda; their son, Ricky 15; their daughter Debby, 18, and Mark Lang, 20, identified as Debby's boyfriend.

Conservationists React Strongly

(c) Chicago Sun-Times

Washington — Conservationists reacted strongly to what they regard as a White House effort to turn back the clock on environmental purity.

Commenting on the import of President Nixon's energy conservation speech, in which he indicated that suspension or relaxation of clean air and other environmental standards may be necessary, Brock Evans of the Sierra Club said:

"Just because Mr. Nixon wants to relax the laws we've fought so hard for doesn't mean that the people and the Congress do."

Evans is regarded as the bellwether lobbyist for the environmental movement in Washington.

He recalled that on Jan. 1, 1970, Nixon released an environmental message that stressed the urgency of mounting an effort against pollution. In this message, Nixon said, the 1970s "absolutely must be the years when America pays its debt to the past by reclaiming the purity of its air, its waters and our living environment. It is literally now or never."

Evans asserted that "the goal of energy self-sufficiency, with our present gluttonous life style, can only be achievable with massive devastation or the landscape and pollution of the air and water."

He acknowledged that the energy crisis is real and that some adjustments must be made, however.

Stewart M. Brandborg, executive director of the Wilderness Society, remarked after hearing the President's speech that "the bold new starts for protecting the environment for further degradation seem to be falling by the wayside."

Did The Industry Hold Back Oil?

Washington (UPI) — Transportation Secretary Claude Brinegar told the Senate Interior Committee Thursday he had no evidence the oil industry had held back substantial quantities of oil.

But he said he did believe some wells had been shut down and he suggested to the committee: "It's worth an inquiry."

European Papers Blast 'Appeasement' Of Arabs

Brussels (UPI) — European newspapers denounced as "appeasement" Thursday the pro-Arab declaration by European Common Market nations in the face of oil embargoes.

Appeasement once meant the pre-war concessions which the democracies gave to Hitler in hopes he would not ask for more. In its new context, some of Europe's leading newspapers threw the word at the European Common Market and the declaration it adopted Tuesday in the face of the Arab oil threat.

"There is not much reason to think that the Arabs can be so easily appeased," said the Times of London. The British Financial Times added, "It would be surprising if the Arab oil states did not ask for more." It interpreted the declaration as "appeasing the Arabs."

The declaration by the Common Market's nine foreign ministers, purporting to be even-handed, went out of its way to condemn the "acquisition of territory by force" and to urge Israeli withdrawal.

The Egyptian government immediately "welcomed" the statement. But across Europe, newspapers expressed bitterness that the nine countries sided with the Arabs instead of coming to the aid of Holland — itself a Common Market member — which is the sole European target so far of an Arab oil boycott.

Several newspapers said the Common Market sold out Holland — and possibly Israel — in the same way that the democracies sold out Czechoslovakia at the Munich meeting of 1938.

"Our leading politicians are prisoners of a Munich complex," said Gazet Van Antwerpen of Belgium.

"The solidarity we show with Holland is like that with Czechoslovakia in 1938," said the French news magazine L'Express. "It's an economic Munich."

"One can compare Israel to Czechoslovakia . . ." said the Paris newspaper L'Aurore. "For the governments of Europe, the existence of a little country is a question of central heating."

Algeria Reduces Oil Exports 25%

PARIS (AP) — Algeria has informed Western oil companies that it is cutting its oil exports by 25 per cent, oil sources said Thursday.

France — Algeria's major client — has received assurances that its supplies would not be affected because of its pro-Arab policy, the sources said.

France receives about 13 million tons of crude oil annually of Algeria's total production of 55 million tons.

Administration Said Not Ready To Take Stand

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Agriculture Department official said Thursday that the administration is not yet ready to give its position on a proposal to create a Federal Grain Insurance Corp. to insure farmers' grain payments.

The measure would erect a structure similar to the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., which protects savings deposited in banks.

Gerald L. Oien, chief of the warehouse service branch of the Agricultural Marketing Service, told a House Agriculture subcommittee that the bill is under review but no formal position has been taken.

The bill would insure payment for grain deposited for storage and-or sale up to a limit of $25,000 for any one producer at any one elevator at any one time.

Tech College Board Sets Nov. 17 Meeting

The State Board of Technical Community Colleges has scheduled a meeting for Saturday, Nov 17, at Nebraska Western College in Scottsbluff, executive director Robert C. Schleiger reported Thursday.

Family Held Prisoner Flees As Captors Sleep

WADENA, Minn. (AP) — A farm family held prisoner more than 33 hours escaped Thursday after the two jail fugitives who held them captive fell asleep.

Elmer and Joyce Wegscheid and their eldest son, Ed, 15, fled from their home with two of the escapees' three weapons about 4:15 a.m.

Three other Wegscheid children were released on Wednesday.

The Wegscheids said they were in continual fear for their lives despite assurances by the fugitives that they did not want to harm them.

John P. Morgan, 37, and William L. Winans, 18, entered the Wegscheid home about 6 p.m. Tuesday. They surrendered peacefully 36 hours later, the FBI said, after discovering their hostages had fled.

Morgan had been jailed on murder charges in a double slaying. Winans had been charged with stealing beer and cigarettes. They escaped from a Wadena jail Monday night after wounding a jailer and had holed up in the Wegscheid home while bargaining with police for a plane to fly them to freedom.

Ag Conference Set For Mid-December

Washington (UPI) — Agriculture Department officials have decided to move their annual outlook conference up from February to mid-December in an effort to help farmers and farm suppliers make early advance plans for an all-out production drive next year, the agency has announced.

Agriculture Secretary Earl. L. Butz said the conference would be Dec. 17-19.

EVENTS

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

President Nixon is not even a day too early in his request to Congress for emergency powers to deal with the nation's energy crisis. In his request to the American people, he may be timely enough but his firmness is subject to question.

Conditions that were developing prior to the President's Wednesday night statement were an indictment of our society's values. We had been heading toward a situation in which it was business as usual along all luxury lines and curtailment in the area of essentials.

It was ridiculous that we should talk of such things as the closing of schools and the curtailment of our agricultural processes while the American people in general proceeded with business as usual, including unlimited consumption of gasoline and total home-heating comfort. Amazingly, it had even been reported that a substantial reduction in public transportation would be imposed upon the community of Lincoln while private automobile traffic continued on its merry, extravagant way.

We still doubt that the President will achieve an energy-saving of any significance in his recommendation that the nation achieve a national daytime average of 68 degrees. This suggestion still relies too heavily upon voluntary action by the citizens, especially in the area of home-heating.

Most of his other proposals rely upon the passage of permissive legislation which, if implemented, would substitute law for personal choice. This includes a change to year-around daylight savings time, suspension of some environmental regulations, 50-mile-an-hour speed limits and suspension of price regulations on new natural gas.

None of these programs is calculated to make life more convenient or enjoyable for the American people. The President stressed, however, the historic pattern of the American people in rising to whatever heights are demanded of them.

★

Citing mostly international challenges of the past, Mr. Nixon quite properly pointed out that the sacrifices now being asked of the American people are fully within their capacity to make. And when shown a clear and unmistakable need, he said, the American people have never failed to respond.

It is largely in the area of our mobility that we will face this energy crisis. It is fully expected that Congress will deliver to the President the additional regulatory powers he feels he must have to deal with present conditions.

The lower speed limit on the nation's highways will be somewhat of an inconvenience but is a small price to pay for the resulting fuel savings. Additionally, this change should result in a meaningful reduction in highway accident fatalities.

One saving element in this program at this particular time is found in the fact that it comes when fewer people are traveling the nation's roads. Its time drawback is found in the fact that it comes at a peak holiday period for everyone.

★

It seems to us that Mr. Nixon has asked no more of the American people than they should very willingly do. The full impact of his entire program would still leave the U.S. standard of living one of envy in comparison with that of any other nation in the world.

In looking at the more distant future, the President has set a goal of total independence from foreign energy supplies. In view of developments in the oil-rich Middle East, such a goal is clearly an intelligent one as a matter of national policy.

If the United States intends to continue to exercise its leadership role in behalf of the so-called free world, it has no choice but to bring its energy supply and demand into balance. The President has taken the initiative as he unquestionably had to do, and it now falls to the Congress and the citizenry as a whole to forge a unified effort in the kind of conservation that will best serve the essential needs of the nation.

How The British Press Views Our President

LONDON — By and large, President Nixon has received better press notices in Britain than in the United States. Over the past five years, newspapers in England have gone to considerable lengths to present the American President in a favorable light. The Times of London, in defending Nixon against his accusers last spring, was cited by the White House for enlightened editorializing.

But that was last May. On Oct. 22 The Times asserted: "In dismissing Mr. Cox, the President has challenged Congress to impeach him, for impeachment is the only constitutional procedure for restraining the President inside the law."

Peregrine Worsthorne, associate editor of the Daily Telegraph, saw things in a different light. In an interview on BBC television, Worsthorne said he hoped that the American people would regard events in the Middle East and the near-confrontation between the major nuclear powers as far outweighing any scandal in the White House. Justice must be served, he said, but not at the cost of Soviet world supremacy.

☆ ☆ ☆

Fleet Street has been erratic in its coverage of the White House over the past few months. Solid, in-depth reporting has often been followed by silence on the part of editors who feared they were overplaying the Watergate drama. To some extent, cautious coverage stemmed from concern that a more aggressive approach would undermine America's willingness and ability to live up to its international obligations.

Louis Heron, foreign editor of The Times, said that Nixon's attack on the television networks "was doubly unfair in that no reporters could be more objective and honest than Robert Pierpoint and Dan Rather of CBS, who who had to bear the brunt of his spite." Heron went on to say that he considered such attacks as evidence that the President "cannot be too far from the breaking point."

The economist devoted six full pages of text to "The Saturday Night Massacre" — the firing of Archibald Cox and the resignations of Elliot Richardson and William Ruckelshaus on Oct. 20. The weekly journal stated: "To most people abroad, whether Mr. Nixon should stay in his job or resign has been largely a matter of two things: on one side how useful or necessary Mr. Nixon still is for carrying through his domestic and economic policies. . . on the other, the ability of his successor to take over those tasks from him at all effectively."

Henry Brandon, associate editor of the Sunday Times, has covered the last four American administrations and is widely respected for his even-handed reporting. Brandon nevertheless concluded on Oct. 28 that, "While Mr. Nixon once again seems to be better able to live up to his election promise of working for peaceful solutions abroad, his pledge of a government of law and order at home has become utterly meaningless."

Researchers Alerted

The President's call for a national mobilization against excessive energy use, and his challenge to find new sources of energy, ought to have made some of the nation's forgotten researchers feel a bit more secure.

In fact, Nixon's speech should remind us of the important role that research has to play in modern life, especially when it's becoming more and more complex.

For awhile, researchers in universities and other places no doubt thought they were beginning to see the end of the country's great Sputnik-prompted attention to the labs and the institutes.

Federal grant monies had been dwindling. And, of course, laid-off engineers, scientists and researchers have made great news copy since the nation began to gear down its space effort, once Armstrong and others had done their moon-walking.

Student interest has begun to turn from the natural to the social sciences. Psychology courses have filled up nationwide. Journalism has become more popular.

Perhaps more young people decided they had to understand why people behaved as they did, while others wanted to be sure they could share that new-found understanding with a nation eagerly awaiting the news.

Graduate education, after years of great visibility, had lost its glow.

☆ ☆ ☆

Nixon's call to arms against crises in energy will not change all those trends overnight. But if the country responds with the seriousness the matter demands, some changes ought to be forthcoming.

And among them ought to be a new visibility and appreciation for the research efforts that will have to be funded to help find the answers.

I often write about how teaching should be improved in universities. And my inclinations are to slap academicians' hands because they pay so little attention to their public service obligations. I stand by those arguments.

But now, perhaps, it is time for many of us to point anew to the demands that must be placed on researchers for energy answers.

It this new effort is to match the Manhattan Project of World War II or the space effort in the lat decade, then it must be given the support it needs.

Nixon has indicated he'll ask for that. And Congress should make it available.

In fact, Congress should make more available than Nixon asked.

It'll be important, as the President suggested, to see that we find ways to make the nation energy-independent by the end of this decade.

But it will also be important (though I didn't hear the President stress this) to make sure we keep our world as clean and safe and undamaged at the same time.

☆ ☆ ☆

Nixon has much to say, for example, about how we'd better start peeling back the soil to get at the coal that rests near the earth's surface.

But he didn't say much about how that robs the earth of its abilities to retain nature's balance, as it fouls water flow and causes havoc with soil.

His suggestion that we use more coal was, itself, a disturbing one, since it included no similar call for screening of dangerous gases and particulates that pollute the air.

It's hard to forget what one power plant, burning low-grade coal strip-mined from Wyoming soil, can do to the air for miles and miles beyond its three huge stacks.

Thus, any call for short-term use of coal, or for greater strip-mining utilization, ought also to include a call for immediate attention to the environmental damage involved.

No longer can we accept the argument that such screening is too expensive, especially from power companies who spend thousands finding new ways to advertise, or whose new plants cost millions more than they had predicted, even without such safeguards.

I suppose I was most surprised, after listening to the President's talk, that he had not mentioned solar energy. It's clear that research in that direction should be included in any federal effort to upgrade the search for new energy uses.

☆ ☆ ☆

Finally, it will be interesting to see how many Americans respond seriously to this call for national cooperation . . . a call itself which has been too long in coming.

Fifty miles an hour is slow for a people used to high-speed, superhighway travel. Can we do that? And furthermore, can we turn our attention away from supercharged, chromed gas-eaters to cars of less comfort but more economy?

Will we turn off unneeded lights? Will thermostats really be dropped to below the 70-range?

My guess is that most people will do what they can in the conservation of heat and light use around the home, but will find it very hard to drive no more than 50 on the highways.

But beyond that, the people must demand from others — business, government, neighbors — that they too conserve energy.

Congress Finds Its Resolve

Congress was successful Wednesday in overriding President Nixon's veto of the so-called War Powers Bill. It was the first time in nine tries during this session that both houses of Congress have managed the required two-thirds strength to overpower presidential opposition to major legislation.

But we don't think the Congress, in enacting the War Powers Bill over the President's veto, was "caught up in the hysteria of Watergate" and was kicking Nixon "while he is down," as Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, suggested. Congress most probably would have voted to override had there been no Watergate.

The override was more a reassertion of congressional prerogatives than an attempt to undermine an already weakened President.

And the thrust of the bill itself, while it does limit a president's power to wage endless war, was aimed more at restoring by statute Congress' constitutionally granted authority to participate in war-making decisions.

The critical provisions of the bill require a president to withdraw any U.S. combat forces he commits abroad on his own after 60 days unless Congress votes approval of the commitment by then. That period could be extended another 30 days only if the president told Congress in writing the time was needed to safely withdraw the forces he committed. Congress can halt the war commitment any time during the 60 or 90 days with a simple House-Senate concurrent resolution not subject to a president's veto. With regard to the latter provision, it can be assumed that Congress would not use that authority recklessly. The intent is, rather, that Congress exercise its authority to negate a reckless commitment.

There is nothing in the legislation which would prohibit a president from responding to an attack on the United States or U.S. forces abroad, or from placing American forces on alert as President Nixon did during the Middle East crisis, or from living up to treaty obligations anywhere around the globe. What it does do is require congressional approval of a commitment of forces once made, and that would go a long way in preventing another Vietnam — which is what the War Powers Bill is all about. Congress was loathe to interfere with the warmaking of three presidents during the decade-long Vietnam war. With the support of the American people, it has at long last found its resolve.

It is to First District Congressman Charles Thone's credit that he joined the majority in the welcome successful attempt to restore balance to the separation of powers. The rest of the Nebraska delegation to Congress did not.

A Political Plus

President Nixon's speech on the energy crisis and the challenge ahead will undoubtedly bolster his popularity-confidence rating which, as one columnist put it, is crawling off the bottom of the chart.

Except for his speeches to the nation dealing with Watergate and his televised press conferences on the same subject — which inspired negative reactions because his explanations were hollow — the President has managed to upgrade his standing with the public with addresses on national or internation crises having nothing to do with domestic political issues. Presidents generally have been able to rally people behind them with calls for unity and sacrifice and Nixon has been no exception.

Another factor which should help him — in that it will help restore the sagging confidence in him of many supporters grown luke-warm in their support — was his response at the close of the energy speech to the resignation issue. "I have no intention of walking away from the job " he said, and he didn't sound like a man on the run. It was a tough and totally characteristic performance by the President. He is a resolute man, right or wrong, and many people admire the exhibition of that quality.

Nixon has again started on the long road back, as he has done so often before. A slow but significant increase in his standing with the public can be expected unless new information relating to the scandals crops up or unless he cannot resist stubbornness on the issue of evidence. He is still hanging in there.

Future Space Needs

The County-City Building Committee this week approved plans for a temporary courtroom for a fourth municipal judge to be fashioned out of the west end of the second floor hallway. City Council approval of funds for the remodeling project is expected.

While the need for a fourth judge is well understood, the situation and the pending solution to it deserves additional comment.

First, we think the three present municipal judges were uncompromising beyond the point of reason in refusing to seriously consider one alternative to a temporary courtroom — namely, using the existing courtroom facilities to hold regular court sessions while instituting a night court to be presided over on a rotating basis if only for a test period.

But the judges flatly ruled that out, so apparently the temporary courtroom is what the building committee and the council will have to live with.

They should be determined, however, that this will only be a temporary solution which will not act to stall a long-range solution to the County-City Building space problem.

County Commissioner Robert Colin, while not objecting to a temporary courtroom for the city, noted that it will not help to solve the county's problems. One of the county's problems is the need for an additional courtroom for a second county judge who now hears some cases in the commissioners' hearing room.

Many of the county and city agencies, in fact, are sorely in need of additional space beyond the remodeling and juggling of space that has already been accomplished. Another example: because of the burgeoning growth of the data processing department, the city housing administrator and his staff are now housed in the former public rest room at 10th and O.

If the temporary courtroom lead is followed and city and county authorities continue to partition off and reshuffle space, others of the city's and county's smaller departments might well find themselves in hallways, broom closets and washrooms. Plus, the building itself will be esthetically ruined.

Now would be the time to give serious thought to adding a fifth floor to the County-City Building, or a separate "hall of justice" type building for the courts and police, or any feasible long-range solution to the space problem.

Hemispheric Solidarity Advocated

. . . Ex-President Of Peru Chastizes U.S. 'Neglect'

By GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writer

The former president of Peru, Dr. Fernando Belaunde-Terry, Thursday called for more cooperation among nations in the Western Hemisphere.

Belaunde-Terry, speaking at a press conference, said that the relationship between the United States and South America for the last five years has been one of neglect.

"I think you are learning now by experience that this neglect can be a great inconvenience," he said, claiming that this is illustrated by the affects of the Mideast crisis.

Belaunde-Terry indicated that the current shortage of petroleum would not be as acute if the U.S. had better utilized South American resources.

Oil Possibility

He said there is a possibility that oil may be located on the east slopes of the Andes in Peru.

He also noted that South American countries such as Ecuador and Venezuela already provide more petroleum to the U.S. than do Arab countries.

Belaunde-Terry said he does not agree with the goal set by President Nixon that the U.S. should attempt to become self-sufficient in meeting its energy needs.

Instead, he said, the goal of self-sufficiency should encompass the Western Hemisphere.

"I think this hemisphere has so many resources," Belaunde-Terry said.

'Change Has To Come'

"I think a change has to come about and I think the current (Mideast) crisis will bring it about," he said.

Belaunde-Terry

Belaunde-Terry said an example of how interdependent countries are is the widespread effect of the disappearance of anchovies off the coast of Peru.

The disappearance, due at least in part to a temporary shift of the Humboldt Current away from the Peruvian coast, means Americans are "paying more for their meat," he said.

Peru had been exporting about 2½ million tons of fish meal, produced from anchovies, before the current shifted.

When the source of fish meal, used in cattle and poultry feed, declined, the price of fish meal and an alternative, soybeans, skyrocketed and the hike was reflected at the supermarket.

Satellite Could Help

Belaunde-Terry said oceanic resources can be better managed with the help of information from the U.S.-launched "earth resources satellite."

"You can be very helpful in the study of the sea," he said.

Belaunde-Terry, who was deposed and sent into exile in 1968 by a military coup, said he still expects to return to Peru and be active in public life.

He said he constantly keeps contact with happenings in Peru through a "tremendous amount of mail."

Belaunde-Terry, a distinguished architect, was in Lincoln to speak to architectural and engineering students. Since being deposed he has been lecturing on architecture at universities in the eastern United States.

Food Price Drop To End Soon

Washington (UPI) — Agriculture Department economists predicted Thursday that the current decline in grocery prices will end in early 1974 and prices will begin to climb at a moderate pace.

The experts said, however, that the predicted January-June increase in food prices will not reach the record levels of last August.

Officials added that per capita food consumption in 1973 will fall about 1.5% below 1972 — the sharpest decline in 15 years — because consumers have tightened their belts in the face of rising prices. Meat consumption will be off 6%, the sharpest drop in 25 years, they said.

One expert estimated the January-March increase would be 1 to 2% as meat supplies decline temporarily and other prices continue to advance. He described that as "rather moderate" compared to the 5.7% increase during the same period this year.

The report said retail prices may level off again in April-June 1974, as meat and poultry supplies increase to offset higher prices for other foods. By June, the specialists said, prices may be about the same as this year's July-September quarter, which means they will be below the all-time peak reached last August.

The report said the "all food" retail price index this year is expected to be 13-15% above 1972.

Newsprint Mill's Capacity To Be Increased 25%

Boise, Idaho (AP) — Boise Cascade Corp. announced Thursday a $20 million project to expand capacity of its newsprint mill at Steilacoom, Wash.

The project will increase the mill's production capacity 25 per cent, or 33,000 tons annually. Completion is scheduled in late 1975.

The facility is one of 12 pulp and paper mills operated by Boise Cascade.

Pentagon Considering More Giant C5 Planes

Washington (AP) — The Pentagon acknowledged Thursday it is considering a possible move toward producing more giant C5 transport planes whose performance in the Israel supply airlift has impressed top officials.

A defense spokesman confirmed reports that the Pentagon is looking at the possibility of reopening the C5 production line to strengthen U.S. military airlift.

Any actual new construction of C5s would require a vote of money from Congress and this is likely to meet stiff opposition because of the C5's price.

It costs the Air Force $56 million a plane to acquire 81 C5s and the program was under constant attack on Capitol Hill from congressmen and senators who claimed the price was much too high.

According to Pentagon figures, C5s flew a total of 125 flights to Israel from the United States from the start of the emergency airlift Oct. 14 through Wednesday and carried more than 9,000 tons of military cargo into Israel.

At the same time, 356 smaller C141 transports hauled nearly 9,000 tons during the same period.

Southern Baptist Group Staves Off Money Crisis

BELLEVUE, Neb. (AP)—The Kansas-Nebraska Convention of Southern Baptists has come up with enough money to end a five-year crisis that threatened to bankrupt the group.

Officials said Wednesday the problem concerned $4.5 million in bonds that had been issued to help buy land and build churches in the two states.

Seventy-seven churches were built. In many cases, financial arrangements were worked out that allowed congregations to repay smaller amounts at first and larger amounts later as members increased, said the Rev Charles Hawley, pastor of the First Baptist Church in Bellevue where the denomination is holding its annual meeting this week.

However, more than half the congregations fell behind in payments to the Church Loan Association, the 60,000-member convention's building arm.

The Rev Mr. Hawley said slow payments brought the association to the brink of insolvency. In 1969 the association had liabilities of $3.4 million compared with assets of $1.7 million.

The Kansas-Nebraska Southern Baptists assumed the liabilities to keep from losing church properties.

A church official said fund raising drives, investments and refinancing of some properties through other agencies helped reduce the debt.

Convention delegates voted this week to borrow up to $500,000 from two banks to pay off the remaining bonds.

Services Held For Neuhart, 72, UP Locomotive Superintendent

Omaha (AP) — Funeral services were held here Thursday for David S. Neuhart, 72, a man credited with development and construction of the world's largest and most powerful diesel locomotive. He died Tuesday.

Retiring from the Union Pacific Railroad in 1970, Mr. Neuhart was general superintendent of the motive power and machinery department.

A railroad spokesman said Mr. Neuhart developed the 8,500-horsepower gas turbine locomotive and the 6,600-horsepower diesel-electric "Centennial" locomotive, the largest and most powerful in the world.

A native of Salt Lake City, he started his career with UP in 1918 as a coach cleaner.

Surviving are his wife, E. Lucille; sister, Mrs. Grace Young of Salt Lake City, and a brother, Stanley of Seattle, Wash.

Paths Planned

TOKYO (AP) — The city government plans to build 224 miles of pedestrian paths and 45 miles of bicycle paths over the next 12 years. Cars will be banned from areas near the paths, an official said.

Modifying Considered

Chicago (UPI) — Standard Oil Co. (Indiana) has announced it is considering modifying its refinery at Texas City, Tex., to process foreign high sulfur crude oil.

Worst May Be Over

Louisville, Ky. (UPI) — Sen. Herman E. Talmadge, D-Ga., said the cost-price freeze may be easing for the dairy farmer.

Irwin Imprisonment Defended By State

By United Press International

The State Justice Department told the Nebraska Supreme Court Thursday society must be protected from the likes of Harold James Leroy Irwin of Hastings, adjudged a sexual sociopath, even if it means putting him in prison.

"We submit that the first and foremost function of government is to protect its citizens from acts of criminal violence," the department said in a brief filed with the high court.

Under that concept, the department said, it is not only a right but an obligation that the terms of Nebraska's sexual sociopath law be invoked in the Irwin case.

"Granting the premise of the sexual sociopath law — that there are individuals who, because of mental aberrations, have in the past committed sexual offenses and will continue to commit them in the future — it is not only the right but the duty of government to remove them from society whether or not they can be helped," the department said.

Irwin, after being found guilty on six counts of rape and one count of robbery, was adjudged to be a sexual sociopath by the Adams County District Court in a separate proceeding.

The court then determined Irwin could not be helped by treatment at a regional center and, using the provisions of the sociopath act, committed him to the state prison.

Irwin's attorneys appealed the commitment contending the law is unconstitutional. They said the law is not a criminal law and therefore he couldn't be sent to prison.

The Justice Department said apparently the man's attorneys feel that either he should be "committed to the regional center, in spite of the opinion of the doctors that they cannot help him, or be turned loose."

The department told the court that wouldn't be logical.

"We do not permit mad dogs to roam the streets simply because we cannot cure rabies," the brief said. "We shoot mad dogs; we commit sexual sociopaths to a suitable institution."

In the Irwin case, the department added, prison turned out to be the "suitable institution."

"To hold him at the regional center, where they cannot help him, and where they are not as well equipped to guard him as they are at the penal complex, would be an exercise in futility which is certainly not constitutionally mandated," the high court was told.

Irwin's attorneys, noting the commitment carried with it no time limit, also said the situation amounted to imposition of "cruel and unusual punishment" because the man had no idea if or when he would be free.

The department said, however, the attorneys cited no judicial precedents for such a position "and we submit that it is fundamentally unsound."

Platte County Jail Escapee Held In Texas

Columbus, Texas (AP) — Texas State Patrol officials said Thursday they had captured a Nebraska man here, who escaped last month from the Platte County Jail in Columbus, Neb.

Authorities said Donald Kowalski, 24, of Columbus, Neb., was arrested Wednesday, driving a stolen car.

Another Columbus, Neb., man Joseph Anderson, 18, who escaped with Kowalski, remains at large.

At the time of the escape, Anderson was being held on charges of aiding and abetting in a previous jail-break, and Kowalski was being held in robbery charges.

Platte County authorities were expected to leave late Thursday or early Friday, to return Kowalski.

Students 'Turned Off' By Regents' Stance

By MILAN WALL
Star Staff Writer

A medical student from the University of Nebraska Medical Center told NU regents Thursday that because of regental policies related to abortions "many students are turned off to practicing in Nebraska."

The student, who declined to identify herself for a newsman, told the board that students are wondering whether health professionals or "regents are controlling education and practice at the Medical Center."

She said in a recent survey by the student council, three-fourths of the medical students who responded said regental policies had diminished their interest in staying in the state after graduation.

One-fourth said those policies had no effect on their views about staying in the state to practice.

'Unfair, Unrealistic'

"You're being unfair and unrealistic," replied Robert Koefoot, chairman of the Board of Regents. Koefoot, a Grand Island physician, said he is a graduate of the Medical Center and added: "I love the Medical Center."

"I have supported the Medical Center 100% except for one issue," he said. "If the Medical Center is to rise or fall on a structure of that type, then the structure needs reconstructing."

And another physician, Regent Robert Prokop, said: "What it comes down to is that we may have to restructure the administrative side."

Comments of both students and regents were deliberately vague during the discussion, since Koefoot had begun the regent-student meeting saying regents could discuss nothing under litigation.

The two Medical Center doctors who've been in the middle of the abortion controversy have filed a suit against the board. A court restraining order is keeping the board from altering their employment status until after the case is heard in April.

Dorms No-No Too

Lincoln campus students wanted to talk about dormitory life, but Koefoot said "no" to that too, since student organizations have filed a suit against the board's refusal to permit them liberalized visitation hours or alcohol in their rooms.

Koefoot told the medical student he would be "most happy to discuss it with all the students after this spring."

The student said 800 of her colleagues had been sent questionnaires. Of the 450 who replied, 331 said the regents' actions had adversely affected their views about Nebraska-based practice, while 118 said the actions had no effect on their perceptions.

She also said there has been a "decreasing number of patients coming to the Medical Center.

"Some departments have half the number of patients in their clinics," she said.

Water Is Key To West's Coal

(c) Newhouse News Service

Washington — Strip mining of coal from the American West, on a crash basis, remains the keystone of President Nixon's answer to the nation's widening energy gap. But the long-range success of his plan hinges on the availability of the west's most cherished resource, water.

Two powerful groups of Westerners — cattlemen and farmers — are waging a battle against the massive diversion of water for coal mining operations on the arid plains of Montana, Wyoming, and Colorado.

They joined forces with Eastern environmental groups two weeks ago in a court suit designed to prevent a government agency from selling water to support the large-scale gasification of coal and power-generating complexes envisioned on the Northern Great Plains.

The suit, if successful, would block the Bureau of Reclamation's plan to divert more than 1 million acre feet of water a year to mining interests. Already, the agency has granted options for 623,000 acre feet of water to at least a dozen companies interested in developing coal gasification or liquification plants, including Exxon, Mobil, Shell, Gulf, Peabody Coal Co., Reynolds Mining, Panhandle Eastern Pipeline and the Colorado Interstate Gas Co.

Without the water, plans envisioned by the Nixon administration and industry for producing gas from 300 million tons of coal a year — more than half of last year's total U.S. output — would collapse.

The ranchers contend the Bureau of Reclamation has no authority to divert water from federally-financed irrigation projects such as the Boysen and Yellowtail Dams near the Montana-Wyoming border. To do so, the ranchers claim, reclamation officials must get new authority from Congress.

While the legal battle might slow development of coal gasification, it would not block administration plans to transport Western strip-mined coal by rail as far east as Chicago and as far south as Louisiana. Such surface mining operations require only limited amounts of water for land reclamation. The coal companies maintain they have enough water for reclamation without requiring large-scale diversion.

According to geologists, the northern plains contain more than 30 billion tons of strippable coal. In addition, there is nearly as much coal on Indian-held lands in the Southwest.

Coal Industry Says It Faces Problems

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — Coal industry spokesmen cited several problems Thursday facing a presidential proposal to make greater utilization of coal to lessen the energy squeeze.

President Nixon, in his broadcast message on the energy crisis Wednesday night, suggested broadened dependence upon coal to fire electrical generating plants as a stop-gap measure against further depletion of oil reserves.

"We're going to have real problems in trying to increase our productive capacity," says Carl E. Bagge, president of the National Coal Association.

A spokesman for one of the nation's leading coal producers adds that the industry is 'currently operating at capacity.

"We couldn't mine another ton of coal now. You just can't turn coal on and off like a faucet."

Industry officials say skilled manpower shortages, environmental restrictions on both strip and underground mining and the high cost and lengthy development time of new mining operations prevent any immediate surge in production.

At best, according to Tom Bethell, research director for the United Mine Workers union, a 10 per cent gain in production could be obtained by existing operations. But he adds that it would take six months to achieve the increase according to industry estimates and, by that time, the winter fuel crisis would be past.

U.S. Exports Fuel Oil

Washington (UPI) — The Cost of Living Council said Thursday that despite a shortage of heating fuels in this country, U.S. exports of fuel oil in 1973 likely will be almost triple last year's exports.

The council said, in response to a request by Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., for information, that exports this year probably will reach 53.3 million gallons, a 184% increase over last year's 18.8 million gallons.

Aspin said the export price in August was $6.73 per 42-gallon barrel.

"Apparently the lure of big profits is persuading major oil companies to export desperately needed fuel oil despite the shortage," said Aspin.

The American Petroleum Institute said Aspin was "talking through his hat" because the COLC report did not note whether "major oil companies" were the exporters or what portion of the shipments might be for processing abroad and subsequent return to this country.

Mrs. Orr Eyes 42nd District Seat

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Former Republican State Chairman Lorraine Orr of North Platte may seek election to the Legislature next year.

Mrs. Orr had considered a 1972 bid for a legislative seat, but reapportionment of the Unicameral attached North Platte to the legislative district of Sen. J. James Waldron, whose term does not expire until the 1974 election.

Thus, while former Sen. Ellen Craft of North Platte vacated her seat after the 1972 election, there was no opporutnity to succeed her until 1974.

"I'm thinking about it," Mrs. Orr said. "I am giving very serious consideration to seeking election to the Legislature.

'Encouragement'

"So far, I have been receiving quite a bit of encouragement, but I doubt that anything will be decided until after Jan. 1st."

A former GOP state vice chairman, Mrs. Orr was elected Republican chairman in 1967 after the election of Norbert Tiemann as governor. She served in the party post during Tiemann's term in office, stepping down in 1971.

The 42nd Legislative District contest could be a particularly intriguing one in 1974.

Waldron headed the legislative committee which shaped the reapportionment of districts in 1971, attaching his hometown of Callaway and a surrounding strip of land in Custer County to Lincoln County (North Platte).

Prior to the reapportionment, Mrs. Craft had represented a legislative district composed only of Lincoln County. Waldron at that time represented 10 counties, including Custer.

Selection Wiped Out

The reapportionment wiped out selection of a replacement for Mrs. Craft by North Platte voters in 1972. Waldron has represented the community in the Unicameral during the ensuing time.

Waldron, who has served in the Legislature since 1967, said he has made no determination yet on whether he will seek re-election next year.

If he does, it is expected that he will establish a law practice in North Platte, thus becoming more identified with the population center of his new district.

Mrs. Orr said there is some resentment in North Platte over the reapportionment maneuvering which left the community without an opportunity to elect Mrs. Craft's successor in 1972.

Waldron has "not been a familiar face" in North Platte since that time, she said.

Thus, the politics of reapportionment could be a major factor in the 42nd District contest next year.

Hickman Youth Reports Roof Of Auto Walked On

Somebody walked around on the roof of his car while he was stopped for a stoplight at 48th and Randolph, Terry Essink, 16, of Rt. 1, Hickman told police.

Essink told police a young man jumped out of the car behind him as they waited for a red light, walked over his car from rear to front and then returned to the car behind him.

Police said the man apparently was wearing "waffle-stompers" or football shoes. Damage to the Essink auto was estimated at $80.

People are theorizing the incident may stem from an incident earlier at a restaurant at 35th and Holdrege. Police said Essink had questioned several parties on whether they had removed a hub cap from his car.

Jensen To Quit State Council On Aging Post

Ron Jensen, executive director of the Nebraska Commission on Aging since 1967, announced Thursday that he will resign Dec. 15, 1973, to take over the associate directorship of the Nebraska Hospital Association.

In his new post, Jensen will be a liaison with the Legislature and state agencies.

Jensen made no mention of salary in his announcement but added: "The past six years have in many ways been the most rewarding and exciting of my profession," since it was a time of growth in services for the aged.

Strike Prompts Storage Rental

SCOTTSBLUFF, Neb. (AP)— Warehouse facilities have been rented in Scottsbluff and arrangments are being made at the district level to alleviate the problems created for Safeway Stores by striking grocery clerks in Denver and the closing of Denver warehouses.

The warehouse in Scottsbluff will serve as a distribution center for 17 Safeway stores in Western Nebraska, Colorado and South Dakota, according to James Campbell, district manager for Safeway.

Problems concerning supplies and distribution for the district are a result of a strike by the International Retail Clerks Union and picketing which closed warehouses when members of the Teamsters Union honored the picket lines.

House Passes Northeastern Rail Aid Bill

Washington (UPI) — The House Thursday passed a $1.4 billion bill designed to rebuild bankrupt Northeastern railroads. The action came after all efforts to water down the bill's labor-protection provisions were rejected.

The bill, which now goes to the Senate, would establish a federal corporation to purchase and refurbish the most-used lines of seven bankrupt railroads in the East and Midwest, including the country's largest, the Penn Central.

The measure was approved 306 to 82.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Forecast For Friday

When Leo smiles, the room lights up — these natives can make or break a party. The same is basically true of Capricorn, but in a different way. The style of Capricorn is more direct, to the point, slightly "heavy." Capricorn can be dour, somewhat cynical in contrast to the Leo happy-go-lucky way. Gemini can look at Leo and Capricorn and dub them the "odd couple." Gemini has a sense of self-interest. Leo has self-esteem. Capricorn has self-awareness. Capricorn and Leo find Gemini a great audience . . . and Gemini views Leo and Capricorn as "something else." Get these three together and you have the Sun, Mercury and Saturn and a mixture which leaves a lasting taste . . . for better or worse.

☆ ☆ ☆

ARIES (March 21-April 10): You may want too much too soon and for a price that is out of line. Obviously, patience and restraint become twin allies. Without them, you will spend and get nothing of value for plenty of effort and money.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Cycle is high but one in authority refuses to let you have a "cakewalk." Means obstacles, challenges are thrown in your path. You may also have to deal with Aries on a rampage. Be specific, controlled and observant.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Make changes but don't discard proved methods, values. Deal gingerly with Virgo. One who confides in you wants approval. Know it and don't make mistake of offering anything else. You will understand.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Friend who may seem to oppose you is merely going through cycle of temperament. Know it and don't make a big thing of it. Ride with emotional tide. Family member proves staunch ally. Throw aside false pride.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Opportunity is present but it is necessary to be realistic. Don't see through rose-colored haze. Pisces, Virgo persons tend to exaggerate. Prestige is in picture but so is tendency toward self-deception.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): What you do now will have long-range effect. Be ready to organize. Get facts filed and ready for use. Accept challenge, responsibility. Capricorn, Cancer persons are in picture. Communication received from one at a distance is highlighted.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You are able to finish, to put final touches on project. Aries aids. Money affecting co-operative effort is questioned. Fresh creative energy comes to fore — you imprint your style. You are due to emerge a winner.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): What you own is apt to increase in value. Be patient. Don't jump at first offer. Open horizons. Perceive potential. Reruse to be painted into corner. You have more to offer than might be apparent on surface. Know it, act like you are aware of it.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): What appears to be a weight, an impossible aspiration, will settle into constructive groove. Cancer, Capricorn persons figure prominently. Maintain balance, steady pace. Improve property. Remodel. Build on base that is solid.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You spread out — your interests multiply. Curiosity is stimulated — Sagittarian could be in picture. Accent is on change and special relationship. Advocate creativity. Young person wants to serve your interests.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Solid results are featured. Those who demanded results are now likely to express satisfaction. Your approach is thorough and you detect flaws. Quality becomes your ally. You will receive meaningful compliment.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Movement, travel and visits could be featured. Gemini, Virgo figure prominently. You are provided with valuable information. Key is to use it wisely. Relative asks you to be discreet. Comply. You are on brink of discovery.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you draw people to you with their problems. Many persons confide in you and accept your counsel. You deal many times with Aries, Libra individuals. Travel indicated for December. You are ambitious, active and fond of faraway places. You perceive future trends and you are an accurate prognosticator. You aid the underdog and are actually better at helping others than when it comes to aiding yourself.

HARBOR MASTER

Durango

for the man who understands excellence

Anyone who collects rare coins or available L.P.s realizes that the only thing which separates the sublime from the ordinary are painstaking details. John Weitz has distilled some of the best European ideas and created this cosmopolitan coat for American tastes. The Durango is a virile, "he-man" weathercoat that combines forward-looking fashion with a distinguished and dignified silhouette. It is young and bold, but appeals to men of every age who want to look and feel young. New shorter length with full Raglan sleeves and shoulder epaulets, brass buttoned front and slash pockets, wrap around belt and buckle with tunnel loops. Durango is several cuts above ordinary weathercoats. Tailoring and contrast stitching are superb — of topcoat quality. Consequently it has an exceptionally fine fit. Made of 100% Texturized Dacron polyester in a woven fabric that stretches for comfort and shakes off wrinkles. Your size is here in Regulars, Shorts and Longs. Choice of Navy, Hunter Green or Sand.

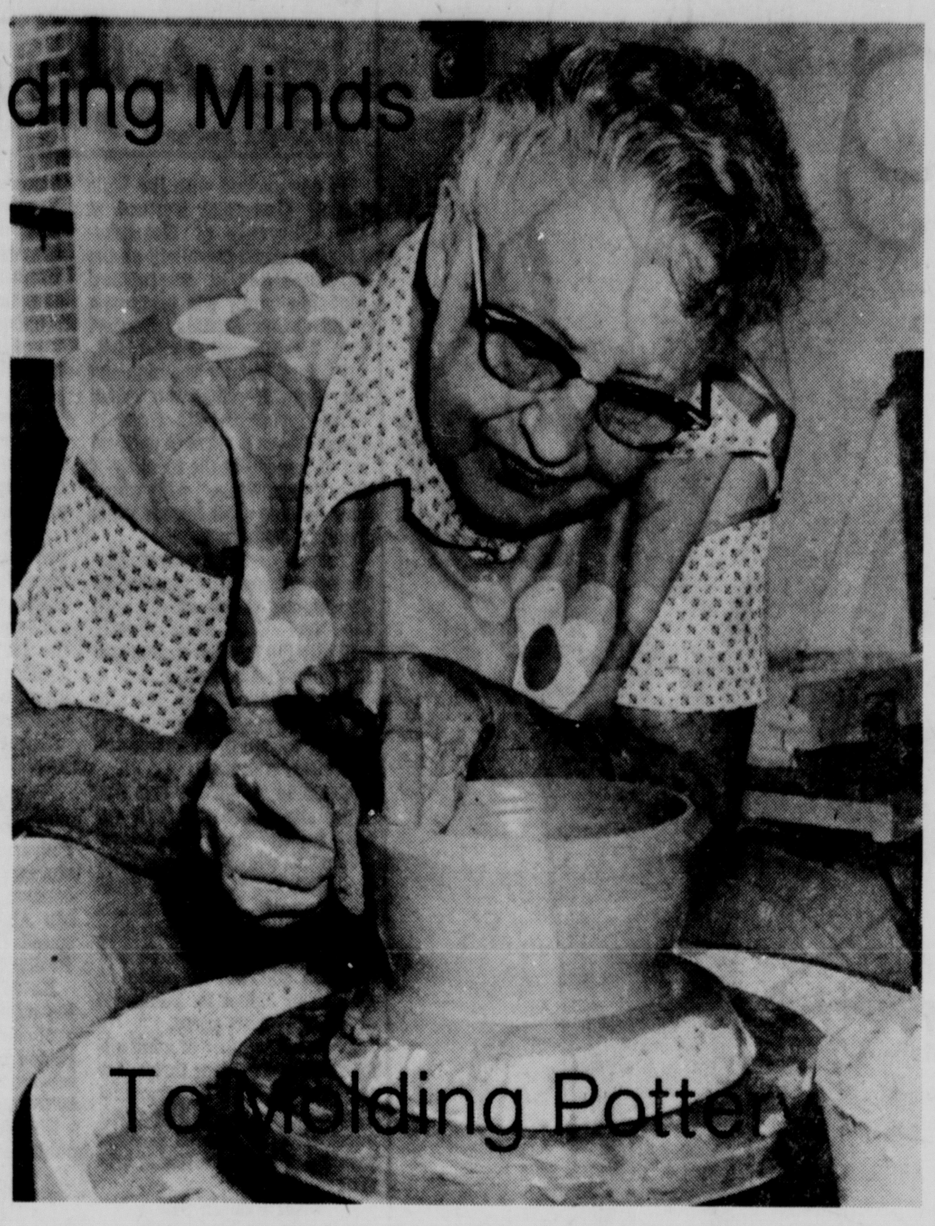
Molding Minds



Mrs. Bessie Stevens, a retired teacher, throws a pot during a recent arts and crafts festival.

To Molding Potter

Teacher Turns Potter

By Linda Olig
Star Staff Writer

After a lifelong career of molding young minds, Mrs. Bessie Stevens of Sprague has taken to molding pots.

"When I retired, I didn't want to sit down and fold my hands," she said.

So, four years ago when she retired from teaching fifth graders at Calvert School, Mrs. Stevens decided to keep her hands busy — throwing pots, dabbling a little in experimenting with glazes, and even keeping her teaching skills well in hand by instructing other aspiring potters.

To do this, she has established her own studio, The Portfolio, which she has operated for the past year.

Actually, she became involved in pottery as a hobby more than 10 years ago but her teaching commitments prior to retirement restricted the time she was able to apply to her pots, kilns, clay and stoneware. During those days gone by the summer months provided the perfect opportunity for renewing the hobby.

She sees the revival of interest in pottery as "larger than ever before."

And she makes whatever her public demands. "Right now hanging bowls are all the rage," she observed.

For those considering launching a similar hobby, complete with side benefits (teaching or selling the products), Mrs. Stevens offers just one word of caution: The initial outlay is expensive if you are planning to do your own firing (in a kiln).

But to the professional potter, the rewards of the hobby far outweigh the cost.

CYNTHIA JOHNSON — GRACIA SIEB

In conjunction with the Willa Cather Centennial Festival at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, three members of the internationally acclaimed Menuhin family will perform a Willa Cather Birthday Concert Dec. 7 in Kimball Recital Hall.

Violinist Yehudi Menuhin and his sisters, Hepzibah and Yaltah — both pianists, will come to Lincoln from London to perform out of respect for the memory of their "Aunt Willa," with whom they became close friends while living in New York.

Yehudi Menuhin, who won international renown following his appearance at age eleven with the New York Philharmonic, will play the Beethoven concerto for violin and orchestra.

The Menuhin sisters, both international concert pianists, will present the rarely heard Mozart two-piano concerto.

Emanuel Wishnow and the University symphony will accompany the three performers.

Patrons, who contact the Kimball Hall box office and make arrangements for their tickets prior to Nov. 15, will have their names published in the concert program and will be guests of Chancellor James H. Zumberge at a post concert party.

A limited number of adult admissions and student tickets for the concert will be available beginning Thursday. For more information, interested persons should call the box office at 472-3375.

Computer Date Is Bad Scene

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: If you use my letter, please don't use my name. I already feel like a first class fool. I am a 58-year-old widow who signed up with a computer dating service four months ago.

I was interviewed in person and said I liked classical music and theater, and only wanted a presentable escort. I paid them $398, and they guaranteed me two dates a month with a man supposedly selected by computer whose interests would match mine.

None of the characters they came up with were even presentable. All impressed me as men who were looking for a meal ticket. Some were insulting.

After four months without one suitable date, I asked this company for a $200 refund. They turned me down. I saw my lawyer, who said I was an idiot for having gone for a deal like this in the first place.

I could sue them, but I don't want to publicize my foolishness. I ask you, are all these mating and dating services just out to take people? And where does a repectable woman go to meet a decent man?

BEEN HAD

DEAR BEEN: I've had both bad and good reports on computer dating and mating services. (Mostly bad, which is not surprising since people write to me about their bad breaks — not their good.) I agree with your lawyer. Respectable women meet decent men through mutual friends, or in decent places like volunteer organizations, church groups, and adult education classes.

DEAR ABBY: I am 17 years old and am still a virgin. This guy I'll call Randy asked me to go all the way with him. I told him I was saving myself for marriage, and he said I was foolish because no guy wants a virgin anymore. Is that true?

Randy signed up for the Navy for four years and he is leaving soon. Do you think a girl should get that serious with a guy before he goes into the Navy? He probably just wants somebody to write to, but I am afraid to get involved with him knowing he'll be tied up with the Navy for so long.

Please tell me what to do as I am all mixed up.

IN DOUBT

DEAR IN DOUBT: Slow up, young lady, or you will be in TROUBLE. Plenty of guys want their brides to be virgins so don't let Randy sell you a bill of goods. He sounds like an immature, irresponsible kid you would do well to stay away from.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
2 ♠	Pass	3 ♠	5 ♦

Opening lead - king of spades.

Here is a dream hand played once upon a time by Dorothy Hayden Truscott. She didn't actually play the hand — it occurred in one of her bridge dreams — but it features a play the likes of which you've never seen.

Mrs. Truscott was East and declarer got to five diamonds on the bidding shown. Looking at all four hands, it's difficult to imagine South's finessing the jack of hearts successfully, since Mrs. Truscott had the queen — but ducking the jack turned out to be the only way to beat the contract.

West led the king of spades and continued with the ace. Declarer ruffed, played a heart to the ace, and tried a diamond finesse, losing to the queen.

Back came a heart and declarer quite properly played the jack from dummy. He reasoned that putting up the king and discarding a club wouldn't help him a bit, because he had two club losers to worry about and one discard was virtually useless.

So South finessed the jack and Mrs. Truscott — in her dream — followed low. Declarer naturally discarded a club on the jack of hearts and now — since he had no way of knowing that the clubs were favorably divided — continued with the king of hearts on which he discarded his other low club. West ruffed and declarer went down one.

Had Mrs. Truscott played her queen of hearts on the jack, as she surely would have done had she been awake, South would have made the contract by simply drawing trumps and cashing the A-K of clubs.

School Board Convention Turns Down 3 Resolutions

Three controversial resolutions dealing with integration of the Omaha Public School District, elimination of county superintendents and reciprocal tuition agreements with other states were defeated Thursday by delegates to the Nebraska State School Board Convention.

Those three were the only resolutions to get voted down out of 21 which were offered for 74 delegates' consideration.

School board delegates approved resolutions seeking laws from the 1974 Legislature to:

—exempt school boards from budget limitations passed by the 1973 Legislature when budget increases are needed to maintain accreditation or meet state and federal requirements.

—provide approximately 50% of school operating costs from state sources.

—clarify continuing contract laws for teachers.

—allow school districts to defend board members and administrators in lawsuits arising from their board duties and to indemnify them from any unfavorable judgments.

—remove school boards from the jurisdiction of the Nebraska Court of Industrial Relations in teachers' salary disputes.

The resolution regarding the integration of the Omaha Public School System stated that the matter is a statewide concern and urged the State Board of Education and the Legislature to develop guidelines for integration.

The U.S. Department of Justice is currently negotiating with Omaha school officials to integrate Omaha schools. The State Board of Education has washed its hands of any involvement, saying integration is a local concern.

Set Precedent

Jack Higgins of Grand Island urged adoption of the resolution and predicted Omaha's experience will be repeated throughout the state. State guidelines, he said, would set a precedent and hopefully ensure an orderly effort to integrate.

Opponents, led by Jack Stanek of Omaha, gained approval for deletion of the state guidelines suggestion, leaving the resolution, as one delegate put it, "an empty platitude."

Jack Lough of Albion told the assembly integration is a local problem and should not involve the whole state.

"The only racial problem we have in Albion is an exchange student," he said.

Lough also helped defeat the reciprocal tuition resolution. He said such an agreement would be tantamount to "exporting college kids from Nebraska."

If a reciprocal tuition agreement were reached with Colorado, Lough said, "Kids from everywhere would go to Colorado to ski."

From Iowa

However, Mrs. Dorothy Beavers of Omaha told the delegates there are a great number of western Iowa youth who would attend four- and two-year institutions in eastern Nebraska if non-resident tuition did not exist.

The Majority apparently felt the resolution should be held over for further study.

Agreement among delegates appeared unanimously in opposition to any restrictions on school boards' discretion in school expenditures. When the 1973 Legislature increased state aid by $20 million, they imposed a limitation restricting budget increases by school districts to the cost of living and wholesale price indices.

Paul McIntosh of Norfolk said the Legislature has to be convinced that school boards are "not a bunch of wild-eyed spenders."

Mrs. Ruth Nichol of Scottsbluff said a recent meeting with Gov. J. James Exon indicated that Exon will veto any school bill lacking a spending limitation. Mrs. Nichol said Exon would be "open to negotiation," however.

Ed Boards Group Tabs Schwartz

Irv Schwartz, a Hildreth implement dealer, was elected second vice president of the Nebraska State School Boards Association Thursday.

The election means Schwartz will automatically take over the presidency of the association in 1975.

Balloting indicated that Schwartz defeated J. Paul McIntosh, a Norfolk businessman, for the post on a 42-32 vote.

Schwartz is a member of the Central Nebraska Technical Community College Board and graduated from Midland College with a bachelor's degree and the University of Nebraska-Lincoln with a master's.

He taught in the Brady and David City school systems prior to joining Midland College as a field secretary in 1938.

'No Evidence Of Wrongdoing' Seen In Trucking Contribution

Omaha (AP) — A Nebraska Republican official said he sees "no evidence of wrongdoing" in a $600,000 contribution from the trucking industry to the Nixon campaign last year.

National Committeeman Richard Herman said the truckers gave the money because they were "fearful of a McGovern victory." He labeled implications that the donations were made to secure government favors "witch-hunting."

The trucking funds, representing the largest single-industry gift to the Nixon campaign, was reported by Senate Watergate investigators.

The money allegedly was given while truckers were fighting a government proposal to ease rates and allow more companies to compete for shipping business.

Herman said he knew of no Nebraska trucking firms, including his own, that contributed to the industry fund.

View Said One-Sided

Augusta, Maine (UPI) — Harold L. Jones, chairman of the Maine Republican Party, charged that Democrats in Congress are attemtping to give a one-sided view of the nation's problems to enhance their chances in the 1974 elections.

State Motorcycle Helmet Law Heads Safety Legislation List

By United Press International

State Motor Vehicles Director John Sullivan said Thursday heading the list of safety legislation to be handed to the Legislature next year will be a workable motorcycle helmet law.

"It has been decided that the very top priority item is to come up with an effective and enforcable helmet law," Sullivan said in an interview.

That decision, he added, came out of a meeting of the Governor's Traffic Safety Advisory Committee.

The committee, at the request of Gov. J. J. Exon, is in the process of putting together a package of proposed safety legislation for consideration next year.

Sullivan said the state needs such a law for safety reasons. But he added there is another incentive for action besides safety.

"Not only do we think the state needs this law, but we have been mandated by the U.S. Transportation Department to pass this legislation next year or face the penalty," Sullivan said.

That penalty includes the loss or withholding of 10% of Nebraska's highway construction funds — between $3 million and $4 million — as well as the loss of federal highway safety program state allocations. The state this year received about $1.2 million in safety program money.

As a result, Sullivan said he has called a meeting for Nov. 21 of a special committee to be composed of six persons to work on the matter.

The state technically has a helmet law on the books but it has been declared inoperative by the courts as a result of a suit brought by motorcycle interests two years ago.

State Prepares For Winter Of Low Fuel

By EDWARD W. HOWARD
Associated Press Writer

Government, business and the man on the street geared up for a long winter of short fuel supplies Thursday.

Major utilities emphasized that Nebraskans would be warm in their homes this winter, but said industrial customers could face service interuptions.

Gov. J. James Exon announced a series of measures in line with President Nixon's energy crisis message.

Some local and county governments announced similar moves, and all those surveyed said they would consider energy-conservation programs in the near future.

Spokesmen for various industries announced some immediate action, but no cutbacks in production or layoffs of workers were mentioned.

At the state level Exon directed that no state vehicle travel in excess of 50 miles per hour except State Patrol cars and emergency vehicles. He asked private motorists to reduce their speed. He has asked for recommendations on legislative action to reduce speed limits.

Thermostats in state office buildings were lowered to a maximum 68 degrees, and Exon appealed to the business and industrial sectors to do likewise.

Exon asked that ornamental gas lighting be eliminated where possible, and ordered that non-essential lighting in state buildings be ended.

He ordered a check on possibly making the Brownville and Fort Calhoun Nuclear generating facilities available at an earlier-than expected date.

At the local level Omaha Mayor Edward Zorinsky ordered that city vehicles be driven no faster than 50 m.p.h., and that temperatures in city buildings and offices be kept at 65 or 66 degrees. Mayoral aide William Kranda was assigned to coordinate city efforts. Kranda said city employers may work staggered shifts.

Omaha Metro Area Transit said it would hasten to put 25 unused old buses in service for use by persons who normally drive to and from work. "We will take the approach of burning one gallon of No. 1 diesel fuel in buses to save 15 gallons of gasoline burned by cars," MAT Executive Director Jerome T. Erdman said.

In York, Mayor LeRoy L. Vineyard ordered compliance with the Nixon guidelines and urged city employes to "set an example" for the public.

In Columbus, Mayor Fred Gerber Jr. ordered temperatures lowered in all city buildings. Meetings are scheduled next week to consider other steps.

In Kearney, City Manager Ray Lundy said the fuel situation was "the worst I've seen in my 20-plus years here." He asked all city department to conserve energy whereever possible.

In Norfolk, city and Madison County government agencies were adopting fuel saving measures. Mayor James Miller had previous ordered thermostats set at 65 degrees, and that city vehicles cut down on travel.

In North Platte and Hastings no affirmative action was taken, but officials in both cities said they planned meetings to further examination their situation. North Platte's City Council asked that business, industry and private citizens take voluntary action to conserve fuel.

The situation was a bit different in Beatrice, where residents were encouraged to use electrical energy, or switch to electrical power where possible. City officals said Beatrice must pay for a certain amount of electricity whether it is used or not, and in the past has had some $20,000 in unused electricity.

The Union Pacific Railroad said it planned to cut heat in all major buildings to 68, and ordered reduced speeds in company cars.

In Beatrice, Dempster and Tote Systems and Kees Mfg. lowered thermostats and said they were trying to find ways to cut fuel consumption during production.

In Norfolk, the Volcraft Division of NuCor Corp. announced temperature cutbacks; a spokesman for Sherwood Medical Industries said its plant manager would attend a corporate meeting in Chicago dealing with the energy crisis.

In Columbus, Dale Mfg. Co. said executive from the Linonel Corp., the firm's parent company, would assist local executives in planning steps "to comply with the spirit of those suggestions.

'Extra Effort' By NU Is Urged By Varner

University of Nebraska President D. B. Varner Thursday asked campus chancellors to "make an extra effort" to join the "nationwide call to conserve our sources of energy."

In a letter to the three campus administrators, Varner urged them to turn down thermostats, switch off non-essential lighting and see that "all employes observe the 50 mile per hour speed limit recommended by President Nixon."

In addition, said Varner, he hoped the chancellors would "urge every member of your faculty and staff to review the necessity of use of any automobiles."

In a separate statement issued Thursday, Chancellor James Zumberge of the Lincoln campuses noted that the campus has already lowered building temperatures to 68 degrees, reduced weekend heating and ordered minimum use of lighting.

But he said the campus may not have enough fuel oil to carry through the winter. "If there should be a long and extended cold spell, the university might have to take steps to reduce its operation to some minimal level."

Although no such crisis is anticipated at this time, said Zumberge, the campus is preparing a plan to meet such a situation.

Zumberge also pledged the university's help in assisting other Nebraskans in their efforts to conserve energy.

"I will mobilize the expertise of the university to provide the kind of information that all citizens can use in their attempts and desires to help as individuals to meet our energy problems."

Downtown Christmas To Be Unlit

Downtown Christmas decorations and lights will be up but unlit during the holiday season, according to Chuck Kuba of the Downtown Lincoln Promotion Council.

Kuba met Thursday noon with representatives of the Lincoln Electric System. He said he was told Lincoln's electricity is still plentiful but the council decided to be cautious and conserve due to the national energy shortages.

A portion of the lights may be turned on for two or three evenings in the heart of the season, Kuba said. The decorations run on O St. from 9th to 15 Sts., on 13th St. from O to M Sts., and on N St. from 11th to 14th Sts.

Milford Civics Students Involved In City Planning

By JOEL THORSON
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Milford — A group of Milford Junior-Senior High School civics students put to use what they've learned about citizen participation in city planning here Thursday night.

Selected by lot to represent Mrs. Julie Jantzi's ninth-grade civics class, Kim Eberspacher, Randy Stauffer and Dan Muhleisen brought their proposals for the design of Milford's new city park before the Chamber of Commerce.

And Mrs. Jantzi will present the entire class's proposals to the Milford Planning Commission for consideration Tuesday night.

Scale Drawings

The three class representatives showed chamber members the scale drawings they made of their park designs, and explained their choices of tree types, grasses, recreational facilities, road locations and other park elements.

Their classmates' park plans were also on hand for the chamber's inspection.

"I was looking for something relevant to their interests," said Mrs. Jantzi in explaining the participatory learning experience. The town has a "desperate need" of recreational facilities, especially for young people, she said.

Baseball and softball diamonds are in especially short supply, she said, observing that there are over 25 organized teams using "two or three" existing diamonds in the summertime.

The new park will contain both softball and baseball diamonds, according to preliminary specifications in the town's application for development funds from the Federal Bureau of Outdoor Recreation and the State Game and Parks Commission.

2 Tennis Courts

Two tennis courts have also been proposed, according to Nebraska Technical College instructor John Treu, who acted as liaison between the city council and the Game and Parks Commission in gaining funds for the acquisition of the 20-acre park site west of town.

Milford now has only one tennis court, Treu said, which is heavily used by Nebraska Tech's 750 students alone.

Otherwise, the design of the park is still an open question. The planning commission, the city engineer, a consulting firm, the city recreation committee and parks commission, and the Bureau of Recreation will all have a hand in planning.

That's where the students come in. They hope to have an influence in planning the park as well.

'Lot Of Research'

The students worked hard on their proposals, Mrs. Jantzi said. "Some of them were really excited about city planning because they enjoyed drawing the scale maps," she said. "But they found out there's a lot of research involved, too."

Besides doing research, the students were visited in class by a representative of the consulting firm and the vice president of the planning commission, Dean Rhoads.

One-third of the park land was donated by the John S. Welsh family. The park will be named in honor of John S. and Mary T. Welsh, who homesteaded the land in 1875.

The rest was bought with 50% city funds and 50% state-federal matching money. In developing the park, the state-federal share increases to 75%, Treu said.

Suitable land for a park near town was scarce, Treu said, but "this was the likely site, with the community growing the way it is in that direction."

An elementary school now in the planning stage will be located just across a road from the park, he said.

Legislators Inspect Energy-Saving Ideas

By United Press International

Sen. Gary Anderson of Axtell said Thursday a subject of the 1974 Legislature may be a proposal which would require schools to close in cold weather.

In addition, Anderson said the lawmakers may wish to study the question of "whether we can allow business houses and stores to be open at night and Sundays" in view of the energy situation.

Anderson is chairman of a special legislative energy crisis study subcommittee, established by the 1973 Legislature.

Meanwhile, other lawmakers said they thought the Legislature would cooperate with national fuel conservation efforts and reduce highway speed limits.

"If that's what we have to do, if that's a necessity, yes, I think the Legislature will cooperate," said Sen. Richard F. Proud of Omaha, speaker of the Unicameral.

However, Proud added, if it weren't for the energy situation he for one would not go along with reductions.

For the past two sessions, he noted, Gov. J. James Exon has attempted to get speed limits reduced from 65 miles per hour to 60 at night. But that effort was based on safety considerations.

Sen. Leslie Stull of Alliance said he too has opposed speed limit reductions but the current fuel situation would tend to force a reconsideration.

"Maybe it's necessary for us to tighten our belts and slow down now," he said.

Northern Great Plains Could Yield Much Coal

Omaha (AP) — Five states in the Northern Great Plains may be producing 362 million tons of coal by the year 2,000, an authority said Wednesday.

John VanDerwalker of Denver, program manager of the Northern Great Plains Resource Council, said there are 104 billion tons of coal in Nebraska, Wyoming, Montana, North Dakota and South Dakota.

He said this coal hasn't been extensively mined because it is relatively low in heat potential compared with coal mined elsewhere.

In a speech to the Missouri River Basin Commission meeting in Omaha, VanDerwalker said the production rate of coal from the area is estimated at 52 million tons by 1975, increasing each year until it reaches 362 million tons in 2,000.

"Even at that rate, economically feasible coal will last about 100 years," he said.

Of the total 104 billion tons in the five-state area, VanDerwalker said only 36.5 billion tons are considered economically feasible for mining under present cost measurements.

The 10-state commission also was told that Iowa will have to spend $1 million for water resources planning in the next two years to bring the state up to date with federal planning.

A survey of states in the commission indicated Iowa's planning activity was the most out of date among members.

A commission source said Nebraska's planning was completed in 1971 and the state will need funding at a relatively low level to remain in line with federal guidelines.

Total planning costs for the 10-state area over the next two years would be about $2 million. This would provide each state with an inventory and analysis of water resources and related land resources.

Escapee Captured Near Fremont

Fremont (AP) — Fremont police and Dodge County Sheriff Homer Brainerd Wednesday captured a 21-year-old escapee from the York Women's Reformatory. Assistant Police Chief Francis Hurt said officers received a tip that Ruth Ferris was staying at a house just south of Fremont. He said she was captured with no trouble and returned to York.

Tourist Attraction Operators To Confer

Kearney — Nearly 60 tourist attraction operators from throughout Nebraska have been invited to attend a meeting in Kearney Monday to discuss formation of a Nebraska attractions association. According to Bruce Christenson of the state Department of Economic Development's travel division, a study group headed by Jack Pollock of Ogallala has been discussing formation of such an association.

Ayr (AP) — Right-of-way will be acquired by mid-1974 and contracts let in early 1975 for a 4.25 mile section of U.S. 281 and Nebraska 74 near Ayr, according to the State Roads Department. A corridor and design public hearing was held here Wednesday night. Department officials said they will recommend approval of the project, but it also must be approved by Gov. J. James Exon and the State Highway Commission. Total cost of the reconstruction is estimated at $1,410,000.

Neihardt Eulogy From Own Poem

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Dr. John Neihardt's fearless reflections on death were repeated at his funeral services here Wednesday night.

Nebraska's 92-year-old poet laureate—also a literary critic, lecturer and authority on American Indians—died last Saturday at the home here of one of his daughters, Mrs. Hilda Petri.

Mrs. Alice Tompson, another of his daughters living here, selected for some 300 friends and admirers at the funeral service a poem written by Neihardt when he was 19, "Let Me Live Out My Days."

The second stanza reads:

"Let me go quickly like a candlelight
Snuffed out just at the heyday of its glow!
Give me high noon—and let it then be night!
Thus would I go."

The eulogy was delivered by Dr. Elmer Ellis, former University of Missouri president, now retired. Neihardt, said Dr Ellis, "is one of the great writers of the generation just passed The university is in his debt. His personal library has been donated to us and it is a collection such as this that makes a university library great."

Neihardt was poet in residence and lecturer in English at MU from 1949 to 1965.

Dr. Monk Bryan, pastor of Missouri United Methodist Church here, suggested there could be no more appropriate theme for the service than what Neihardt said last January about death to an interviewer on his 92nd birthday:

"There is nothing morbid about my attitude toward death. Rumors of the flesh and whisperings of the spirit have alerted me to the fact that I am getting somewhat nearer to the great change and I do not regret the fact. I had a warm feeling for this world, but I believe in a continuing life and I am sure that death will be an astonishing adventure, not to be feared at all."

The body is to be cremated today in St. Louis.

New Jail Near Done At Rushville

Rushville (UPI) — Sheridan County Board Chairman Frank Crotz said he hoped the new $295,000 county jail would be ready for occupancy next week.

Crotz noted the jail has already passed an inspection by Deputy State Fire Marshal Harold Sabotka and faces a final inspection next Tuesday by the Pierre, S.D., architectural firm that designed it.

Construction of the jail began earlier this year, but was curtailed because of a building materials shortage. It was built behind the present jail which was constructed in the early 1900s. The old jail is scheduled for demolition by next May.

The old jail has been the scene of frequent escapes, some of which were accomplished by removing bricks from a wall. Jail sentences handed down to several women have been postponed until the new jail is ready for occupancy.

The old jail failed a fire inspection, but was allowed to remain functional because the new facility was under construction. Jails in Dawes and Box Butte counties have been closed for failure to meet fire regulations.

The new facility, capable of housing 40 prisoners, was financed by federal revenue sharing funds. It will also handle the prisoner load for the communities of Rushville, Hay Springs and Gordon.

The new jail will also house the sheriff's department and associate county judge's offices.

Sens. Warner, Marvel To Talk At AAUP Meet

Faculty members from all Nebraska institutions of higher education have been invited to attend.

Market Gains Strong

New York (AP) — Stock market prices made strong gains Thursday in heavy institutional block action, analysts said, as Mideast war pressures appeared to ease.

It was the second day of market gains after seven days of heavy losses.

Brokers said President Nixon's energy speech also overcame some fears that little was being done to ease the energy crisis.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials closed up 12.57 at 932.65. It had climbed up more than 20 points in the morning, retreated to up over 11, then advanced over 16 points in midafternoon.

Advancing Big Board issues held more than a 2-to-1 lead over declines in a strong trading volume of 19.65 million shares.

The brokers said the stock market once again showed it was reacting emotionally to news events.

Oils and chemicals, under strong recent selling pressure because of energy-crisis fears, were strongly higher. The chemical industry relies heavily on petroleum products.

Coal issues also were active. The Presidentvis energy speech urged a return to greater use of the nation's vast coal resources.

The Big Board's broad-based index of some 1,500 common stocks closed up .66 at 57.40, while the American Stock Exchange market-value index was up .98 at 105.29.

British Petroleum, up ¼ at 15¼, was the Big Board volume leader, followed by Ramada Inns, up ⅜ at 8⅛; Fairchild Camera, up 5⅝ at 70¼ semi-conductor-related issues advanced after recent declines; and Goodyear, off ¼ at 20.

Among the advancing chemical issues was Monsanto, up 1⅛ at 61¼. Among the coal issues, Pittson was higher for most of the day, then closed unchanged at 30.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you. 11-9

Trick Or Treat

Trick or treat night was supposed to be Oct. 31, but they were still playing that theme last Saturday in such places as Los Angeles, Lawrence, Kan., Waco, Tex., and Knoxville, Tenn.

And on the football fields except one where the tricks were being pulled, the trickers wound up without any treats.

In Knoxville with his Tennessee team leading Georgia by 31-28 with 2:27 to play and a fourth-and-two at their own 28, coach Bill Battle decided it would be a good trick to go for the first down.

The trick didn't work and Georgia marched in for a score and a 35-31 upset victory.

At Waco, Baylor was trailing Texas Christian by 34-28, but was at the TCU five-yard line with 22 seconds left.

Baylor was out of time outs, so quarterback Neal Jeffrey decided to pull a trick and intentionally threw the ball out of bounds to stop the clock. The only problem was that he thought it was third down when really it was fourth down.

And at Lawrence with Oklahoma State and Kansas tied at 10-10, O-State called time out with 12 seconds left and the ball at the KU 13 in order to try a field goal to win. But the holder didn't get the ball set up right and the Cowboy kicker failed on the field goal attempt.

But the worst trick of all was one pulled by UCLA placekicker Efren Herrera, who was mad at coach Pepper Rodgers for not letting him kick a field goal late in the 62-13 romp over Washington. So he intentionally missed the extra point that would have made it 63 for the Bruins.

The above kind of trickery helped contribute to a horrible picking week here with only a .619 percentage on 35 wright, 21 wrong and three ties for a season log of 304-109-12 for a percentage of .729. This week:

The Big Eight

NEBRASKA 31, Iowa State 16 . . . A lot of the Huskers remember last year's 23-23 tie. No other incentive needed.

OKLAHOMA 21, Missouri 13 . . . The Sooners take particular delight this season in beating teams that are thinking of a bowl bid.

COLORADO 31, Kansas 27 . . , Kansas' defense is depleted by injuries and Colorado's wasn't great to begin with. so this should be an offensive show.

OKLAHOMA STATE 24, Kansas State 7 . . . These two have little left to play for except pride and the Cowboys hold an edge there.

The Top Ten

OHIO STATE 34, Michigan State 0 . . . The Buckeyes' top challenger in the ratings, Alabama, has an open date. The Buckeyes have the next best thing.

MICHIGAN 24, Illinois 0 . . . After this one and last week's game with Ohio State, the Illini will be happy to get back in its own caliber of competition.

NOTRE DAME 35, Pittsburgh 20 . . . Johnny Majors has brought the Pitt program a long ways in a short time, but not far enough to beat the Irish.

PENN STATE 35, North Carolina State 21 . . . Other than Stanford, which wasn't as tough as expected, this is the only even mild challenge on the Nittany Lions' schedule.

SOUTHERN CAL 34, Stanford 14 . . . The Trojans are starting to get ready for UCLA.

UCLA 51, Oregon 14 . . . Maybe Pepper will let Efren kick a field goal this week — just to keep him happy.

Bear Invites Irish To New Year's Eve Bash

. . . ALABAMA FAVORS SUGAR BOWL, WANTS NOTRE DAME AS 'DATE' IN NEW ORLEANS

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — It will be second-ranked Alabama and fifth-ranked Notre Dame in the Sugar Bowl and No. 7 Louisiana State against No. 6 Penn State in the Orange Bowl, The Associated Press learned Thursday.

The only hitch would be in the unlikely event Notre Dame spurned a challenge by Alabama Coach Paul "Bear" Bryant to play his Crimson Tide in the Sugar Bowl.

The official word from Notre Dame was that the Irish would wait until after their game with Pitt this Saturday to make a decision. However, it was reported unofficially that the Notre Dame players wanted to play Alabama.

Soon after word of the virtually certain Sugar Bowl match, LSU voted to play "an opponent which has at this time a higher rating in the wire service poll."

Although not spelled out in the LSU announcement, it was clear the Tigers were expressing their intention to play Penn State in Orange Bowl since—with Bama and Notre Dame locked up in the Sugar Bowl—the only eligible opponent ranked higher than LSU "at this time" is Penn State.

There was no immediate comment from either the Orange Bowl or Penn State on LSU's late afternoon announcement.

It is no secret the Sugar Bowl has been trying to set up a Notre Dame-Alabama match for days and Bryant's surprise announcement elated officials of the New Orleans bowl.

"We would be idiots to pass up something like this," said Joe Katz, executive director of the Sugar Bowl. "We would welcome the match."

Bryant said in Tuscaloosa, Ala., Thursday morning that his team's seniors had voted unanimously to go to the Sugar Bowl and express their desire to play Notre Dame.

"Since we don't play this week, we felt it would be best to go ahead and face the matter of post-season play at this time, rather than to delay another week," Bryant said.

"The vote was unanimous that our seniors wanted to play in the Sugar Bowl and that they wanted the opportunity to play the University of Notre Dame," said Bryant.

At South Bend, Ind., Notre Dame Coach Ira Parseghian said, "Right now, our primary job is to get ready for our game with Pittsburgh. We're honored by the fact that they (Alabama) want to play us and by the fact they consider us as solid competition."

Despite their long tradition as football powerhouses, Alabama and Notre Dame have never played each other.

Notre Dame has never played in the Sugar Bowl. Alabama's last appearance in New Orleans was 1967 when the Crimson Tide whipped Nebraska 34-7.

At Baton Rouge, Coach Charles McClendon of LSU said he was "glad to get this decision by my squad members."

Alabama and LSU had been scheduled to play Saturday, but the game was moved to Thanksgiving Day so it could be nationally televised.

LSU's next game is the night of Nov. 17—after bowl invitations are formally made. Alabama plays Miami of Florida that afternoon in Tuscaloosa.

LSU also has Tulane remaining on its schedule while Alabama closes out its regular season against Auburn.

After playing Pitt this week, Notre Dame is idle until Nov. 22 when it plays Air Force. The Fighting Irish wind up their season Dec. 1 against Miami of Florida at Miami.

Penn State plays North Carolina State Saturday, Ohio Nov. 17 and winds up its season Nov. 27 against Pittsburgh.

PIUS X EDGES EAST Thunderbolts City Champs

. . . SPARTANS FALL, 13-12

Lincoln Pius X unleashed a passing game which accounted for 275 aerial yards to record a come-from-behind 13-12 football victory over East High at Seacrest Field Friday night.

The triumph gave coach Vince Aldrich's Thunderbolts a clean sweep in three games played against crosstown public school rivals this fall and the mythical city championship.

Pius didn't play Northeast, but blanked Lincoln High, 6-0, early in the season, then edged Southeast, 15-14, a week ago.

East, No. 1 rated in Class A two weeks ago before dropping a 3-0 decision to Southeast, ground out a 77-yard touchdown the first time it had the ball to take a 6-0 lead.

The march, consuming 20 plays plus a pair of penalties, used most of the first quarter.

After Pius had received the opening kickoff and recorded two first downs before being forced to punt, East got the ball on its own 23.

Nineteen plays and five first downs later the quarter ended with coach Lee Zentic's troops on the Pius 14.

On the first play of the second stanza quarterback Bill Holmes lofted a pass — just the third of the entire series — for a touchdown to John Spomer.

But Greg Walker's extra point boot was wide to the left.

The Spartans increased their lead to 12-0 late in the first half after Holmes found Pat Lehigh behind the Pius secondary and hooked up with the East speed merchant on a 58-yard aerial gainer.

Two plays later East's Pat Scott, following the block of Dennis Payne, scampered in from eight yards out.

The Spartans tried to make up for the first extra point miss by going for a two-pointer, but Holmes was smothered while looking for a pass receiver, leaving the score 12-0 at halftime.

The 3,267 frozen fans saw Pius turn things around in the second half. The first time the 'Bolts got the ball, starting from their own 34, they marched the necessary 66 yards in eight plays — with the aid of a pass interference penalty — to tally on a 31-yard Jim Hamersky to John Magsamen pass.

Mike Peters came on to boot what proved to be the deciding point as the 'Bolts closed the gap to 12-7.

Midway through the fourth quarter, Pius got another march going — highlighted by a 19-yard pass gainer from Hamersky to Doug Charko — but East's Karl Voss ended the threat with an interception in the end zone.

But on its next possession, Pius moved 46 yards to score the winning touchdown on four pass plays.

Hamersky threw incomplete, but then found Magsamen for 36 yards, despite underthrowing the aerial.

Both Voss and East's Jim Dennis were back defending and both tipped the ball. Magsamen stood by until after the second tip, then reached to grab the pigskin out of midair for the completion at the East 10 yard line.

After one more miss, Hamersky tossed to wide open halfback Joe Millard for the TD. Millard followed the pass route of Magsamen — who drew double coverage — leaving him wide open for the touchdown toss.

The tally came with just 1:52 remaining and though the extra point kick missed, No. 2 rated Class B Pius had pushed its season record to 7-0-1 and a clean sweep against its four Class A opponents — the three lincoln schools plus Kearney — for the year.

Frosty Anderson

Anderson Scholar Athlete

New York — Nebraska split end Frosty Anderson was one of 11 top college football players, who also excelled in the classroom, to be named Thursday as Scholar-Athletes for 1973 by the National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame.

The group, announced by the Foundation's Awards Chairman, Dick Kazmaier, all qualify for graduate fellowships from the foundation and will be honored at the 16th annual Hall of Fame Awards Dinner in New York on Dec. 4.

Three offensive backs were among the 11 players named. They were quarterbacks Mark Harmon of UCLA and Norris Weese of the University of Mississippi, and Rutgers running back James "J. J." Jennings.

Linemen named included Pittsburgh offensive tackle Dave Blandino; Mark Marokovich, a Penn State guard; Randy Gradishar, a linebacker from Ohio State; Notre Dame tight end David Casper, and Dave Gallagher, a Michigan tackle.

Also selected were Colorado safety Richard Bland, and split end Patrick Michael Kelly of Texas.

The Scholar-Athletes will spend three days in New York and will share the Foundation dinner spotlight with Gold Medal winner John Wayne and the 1973 Hall of Fame inductees.

Will the real first-team offense of the Nebraska freshman football team please stand up?

Substituting 9 of 11 first-teamers with "second-unit" players, coach Jim Ross hopes the change will provide the impetus for an improved showing against the Iowa State junior varsity in Friday's 1:30 p.m. Memorial Stadium encounter which ends the NU campaign.

Last week, while struggling to a 7-3 halftime lead over Colorado with what the NU staff felt was its' first-team offense, Ross switched his entire second-team unit in the second half. The reserves responded and claimed a 28-15 verdict.

Paced by quarterback Randy Garcia of Los Angeles, the NU backfield will consist of I-Back Jack Kelley, fullback Lindsay Kucera and wingback Mike McWhorter.

Garcia, Kucera and Kelley each contributed a touchdown in last week's CU game. Garcia, who owned a 43-yard punting average against CU, scored from one-yard out, Kucera, a North Bend product, ran from 11 yards to score and Kelley rammed over from the four for NU's three second-half touchdowns.

The only defensive change moves Dennis Clark into a starting right tackle position.

While the Huskers have triumphed in three of four tests this season, coach Randy Hart's Cyclones are undefeated in two games. The Ames crew defeated Drake, 9-3 and Illinois, 7-3 as Nebraska downed Kansas State, 10-7, Oklahoma 13-3 Colorado, 28-15; and dropped a 24-22 decision at Missouri.

The game concludes the longest season in Nebraska freshman football history. It marks the end of Jim Ross' fifth year as head freshman coach and if NU prevails, it will give Ross a superb 19-2 record since he assumed the frosh chores in 1969.

Ross guided NU to perfect 4-0 seasons in 1970, 1971 and 1972 and a 3-1 mark in his initial campaign.

The Huskers have enjoyed phenomenal success against Iowa State since 1954 in the series between the two Big Eight rivals.

NU has captured the last 11 mettings and 16 of the last 19 contests, including a 40-13 romp last year in Ames and 54-15 two years ago at Memorial Stadium. The last time NU lost to the Cyclones in Lincoln was in 1961 when ISU emerged an 18-0 victor.

Osborne: Players Need No Warning

By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

Nebraska football fans were warned Monday by Husker coach Tom Osborne not to expect to see their team romp over Iowa State Saturday at Memorial Stadium, but he says he doesn't think his players need any such warning.

"I think our players know what they're in for," he says. "They've seen lots of film of Iowa State and they've been able to see for themselves what kind of football Iowa State can play.

"With any kind of luck, Iowa State would be playing .600 football."

The Huskers will be going against Iowa State with one regular starter back in the opening lineup, but with another one missing.

Frosty Anderson, who returned to action last week after sitting out the Kansas and Oklahoma State games with a shoulder dislocation, will start for the first time since the Missouri game.

But Bob Martin, who has been a starter at defensive end all season, will be replaced by Tom Pate in the starting defensive unit.

Martin, who has an ankle injury, is expected to see some action, however.

Safety Bob Thornton missed Thursday's drill, but will be ready to start Saturday. Thornton had to go to North Platte where his brother had been involved in an auto accident.

A's Collect Shares For Series Win

New York (AP) — Winning the 1973 World Series was worth more than $24,000 per man to each member of the Oakland A's . . . an increase of better than $4,000 per man over what the same achievement was worth to the same team a year ago.

Figures released by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn Thursday showed that each player's full winning share was a record $24,760.87. The losing New York Mets earned $14,950.17 apiece.

LSE Girls Capture City Volleyball Title

Lincoln Southeast defeated Lincoln High, 15-1 and 15-0, Thursday to win the girls city volleyball title, while Lincoln East beat Lincoln Northeast, 15-13, 10-15 and 15-2 for third place.

In the first round the Knights topped the Rockets, 15-10, 8-15 and 15-4 with the Links besting the Spartans, 16-14 and 15-13.

Losier Paces Knights' Win

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Jean Losier scored two goals to lead Omaha to a 5-2 victory over Dallas in a Central Hockey League Game Thursday night.

Omaha, which improved its record to 6-4, moved into third place in the league with 12 points, one more than Dallas.

NU Maintains Defensive Lead

Nebraska maintained its national pass defensive leadership despite Colorado's 73-yard 'trick' play for a touchdown last weekend.

The Cornhuskers per game average is now 40.9 yards per game, compared to runnerup Michigan State's 65.5.

Notre Dame is the total defense leader, followed by Miami of Ohio, Penn State, Ohio State and Michigan.

Doane To Host Volleyball Meet

Sixteen schools will participate, with games beginning at 2 p.m. Nov. 16 and the championship game set for 7 p.m. Nov. 17.

The tourney winner will go to the regional tournament in Minneapolis.

Bruce Changes Lineup For Cyclone-NU Tilt

Ames, Iowa (AP) — Iowa State football coach Earle Bruce announced three lineup changes Thursday as the Cyclones would up preparations for Saturday's Big Eight game against eleventh-ranked Nebraska at Lincoln.

Gary Forge, a Dallas, Texas junior, was named the starting weakside linebacker in place of Brad Storm.

"Forge did an outstanding job as a reserve down at Oklahoma last week," said Bruce.

"He was in for just 13 plays, but made one tackle and seven assisted tackles."

Ramsey Jay will replace injured Randy Bozich at defensive right cornerback, Bruce said.

Bozich suffered a foot injury last week and Bruce said he will be able to see only limited action against the Huskers.

Bruce Fling was promoted to starting safety earlier this week.

The Cyclones will hold a late afternoon workout following the Iowa State-Nebraska freshman football game at Lincoln Friday afternoon.

Ball Believes Links Can Upset Islanders

By Randy York
Prep Sports Writer

Playing Grand Island has special significance for second-year Lincoln High football coach Jerry Ball. He was a standout guard on the 1955 and '56 Grand Island football teams.

Friday night at Seacrest Field, Ball will coach against his former high school for the second time. Last year, his last-minute decision not to punt on his own 27-yard line allowed the Islanders to break a 6-6 tie and win, 13-6, in the final four seconds.

Grand Island, Class A's eighth-ranked team, will be favored again Friday night. But Ball believes his team is primed for an upset in one of Nebraska's oldest high school football rivalries.

A win would allow the Links to finish at .500 with a 4-4-1 record. And it would raise its supremacy in the Grand Island series to 33-17-4.

"I still remember when Lincoln High came up in a hailstorm and beat us at Grand Island when I was a sophomore," recalls Ball. "I think that was Bill Pfeiff's (the Lincoln High assistant principal) last year at Lincoln High. And I think it was the last time Lincoln High had an undefeated, untied season."

Ball labels Grand Island's East Big 10 Conference championship team "big, but quick. They can score from long out and also drive. And they're very sound defensively."

Once-beaten Lincoln East and unbeaten Lincoln Pius X battle Thursday night at Seacrest Field in the city championship game.

Seventh-ranked Lincoln Northeast will journey to sixty-rated North Platte Friday night to tackle the other Big 10 titlist, West division representative North Platte.

Coach Bob Starr's Platters lost their season opener to East, tied Lincoln Southeast, then reeled off seven consecutive wins.

Saturday night at Seacrest Field, Southeast hosts winless Beatrice. Knight coach Frank Solich, however, has some unpleasant memories about the Orangemen.

Two years ago, Beatrice scored two touchdowns in the last quarter to knock Southeast from the No. 1 rating in the season finale, 28-26.

Last year, Southeast escaped from Beatrice with a 14-7 triumph.

Westside Girls Favored To Win

Omaha Westside is a prohibitive favorite to win the first annual girls state high school swimming and diving championships Friday and Saturday at East High's pool.

The Warriors are comparable to the swimming powers produced by Westside's boys teams, according to Lincoln East athletic director Phil Sprague.

Sprague indicated that by Wednesday, he had received entries from 16 schools to participate in the Nebraska School Activities Association-sanctioned meet.

Those entered include Lincoln East, Lincoln Southeast, Lincoln Northeast, Lincoln High, Bellevue, Grand Island, Omaha Central, Millard, Omaha Bryan, Omaha Marian, Fremont, Omaha Burke, Omaha South, Omaha Benson, Omaha Mercy and Omaha North.

Grand Island's Melanie Jakob is expected to be one of the meet's individual standouts. The 15-year-old Miss Jakob is the author of nationally-ranked times in the 100-yard breaststroke and 50-yard freestyle.

East, the Lincoln public schools champion, is expected to be a foremost challenger for the team title.

Coach Dennis Vokolek's Spartans have first-rate challengers in freestyler Sue Haun, butterfly specialist Sally Wilson, diver Lois Hayman and backstroker Susan Griffin.

Other Capital City threats include Lincoln High's Annette Wayne in the individual medley, Southeast freestyler Sue Maude and Northeast's Pam Powers in the breaststroke.

Friday's session starts at 8 a.m. with diving prelims. Swimming preliminaries begin at 10 a.m. and are expected to be completed by 5 p.m. when second round diving starts.

Saturday's finals program, in which six will compete in the championship bracket and six in the consolation finals, starts at 9:30 a.m. with an expected before noon completion.

The order of events: 200 medley relay; 200 freestyle; 100 individual medley; 50 freestyle; diving; 50 butterfly; 100 freestyle; 400 freestyle; 50 backstroke; 50 breaststroke; 200 freestyle relay.

SE Reserves Win Net Title

Lincoln Southeast won the girl's reserve volleyball city championship Wednesday night with victories over Lincoln High and Northeast.

The scores in the title series against Northeast were 14-16, 15-13, and 15-12.

Northeast gained the finals by topping East and Lincoln High won the consolation crown by downing East for third place.

NU Gymnasts Host Big 8 Invitational

Coach Tom Osborne's football team won't be the only group of Cornhuskers with Iowa State on their minds Saturday.

The Nebraska gymnastics team, under the tutelage of fifth-year coach Francis Allen, opens its 1973-74 season at the Coliseum, Saturday, by hosting the seventh annual Big Eight Invitational — and defending NCAA champion Iowa State.

The meet begins at 10 a.m. with the compulsory session then concludes with the optionals at 7 p.m. Both sessions will last about three hours, so early arrivals for the Nebraska-Iowa State grid game will be able to catch the gymnastics meet without missing the opening kickoff.

The Big Eight Invitational has no effect on the Big Eight Championship meet at Norman, Okla., next March.

Iowa State has won two of the last three NCAA titles and the last five Big Eight championships, beating Nebraska, 330.35-313.45, in Lincoln last March for their most recent conference title.

Coach Ed Gagnier's Cyclones lost Big Eight all-around champion Jim Stephenson, conference vaulting champion Stew Buck, and 1972 still rings champ Kim Orr from last year's team, but Iowa State should be even better in 1973-74.

With 15 lettermen returning, Gagnier will have experienced competitors in every event and the Cyclones' depth will be tough to beat again.

However, Allen and the Huskers aren't ready to roll over and die just yet.

"The championship race should be between Iowa State, Oklahoma and ourselves," Allen said. "I think Oklahoma has probably cut down our edge over them a little from last year and we've cut down Iowa State's edge over us."

The Huskers lost Hoppy Batten, 1972 Big Eight vaulting and high bar champ, Larry Evermann, an NCAA qualifier on the side horse the last three years, and vaulting standout John Kocourek from last year's team, but with 11 returning lettermen plus some fine freshmen, Allen expects to field a better team than the one which scored a school record 160.35 in the optionals of last year's Big Eight championships.

NU-CU Tilt Tops Nation

The 76,555 fans, who watched last week's Nebraska-Colorado game at Memorial Stadium, was the largest college football crowd of the weekend, according to NCAA figures released Thursday.

It also was the 67th straight sellout at Memorial Stadium, a streak that dates back to the 1962 season.

"We sold 62,000 season tickets this season and probably could have sold another 5,000," says Jim Pittenger, Nebraska ticket manager. "This is the first year in Nebraska's history we've not accepted some season ticket requests. There's simply no room."

Remarkably, the Cornhuskers have increased stadium capacity five times during the streak, starting with 39,000 to today's 76,400.

Last Saturday's 10 largest college football crowds:

Home Team—Visitor	Attendance
Nebraska—Colorado	76,555

World Open Golf Begins

PINEHURST, N.C. (UPI) — Sweet-swinging Gibby Gilbert, so disgusted with his game that he was ready to quit three months ago, destroyed a legend at fabled Pinehurst Thursday with a record-breaking nine-under-par 62 that left him with a five-stroke lead after the opening round of the $500,000 World Open Golf Championship.

On a course that had his fellow pros struggling simply to reach par, the 32-year-old Gilbert fired eight birdies, five of them in a row, and one eagle against a single bogey. Far back in second, at 67, was Allen Miller.

The 62 was the lowest ever registered on the No. 2 course, which dates back to the early part of this century but has been renovated a number of times. The previous record of 65 was shared by Ben Hogan, Johnny Palmer and amateur Charlie Palmer.

Winter Auto Tune-Ups Urged

Thomas Ryan, supervisor of the accident records bureau of the State Department of Roads reminds drivers that a pre-winter engine tune-up is important for safety, security and the conservation of scarce fuels.

He listed these additional checks:

—make sure that the brakes and all lights are working properly.

—see that tires have deep, even tread. Tests show that reinforced tire chains provide the most traction in snow or over ice.

—insure that the heater, defroster and windshield wipers can keep the windshield free of ice or frost.

—Have the entire exhaust system checked for leaks. Carbon monoxide is deadly.

An Appeal to United Methodists

EMPLOYEES AT THE METHODIST HOSPITAL OF KENTUCKY STILL NEED YOUR HELP

Some eight months ago you—as concerned United Methodists—responded to an appeal on behalf of some 200 employees of the Methodist Hospital of Kentucky, in Pikeville, Ky. They have been on strike since June 10, 1972, because the hospital board has refused to follow Methodist Church policy regarding the rights of working people.

In response to that appeal, many Methodists have expressed their concern over the hospital board's refusal to recognize the employees' desire for representation by the Communications Workers of America as their collective bargaining agent. This concern has taken many forms:

• Efforts to point out to the hospital board that its refusal to acknowledge church policy brings the church into public disrepute.
• Contributions of funds to help the strike by many prominent Methodists.
• Formation of a committee by the Council of Bishops which made several attempts to bring about a settlement of the strike.

So far, all of this has been in vain.

The hospital board continues to spurn the Social Principles of the United Methodists Church—principles that have been consistently reaffirmed by the church. The strike for recognition goes on.

Once again, your help is needed. The Bishops of the United Methodist Church will be meeting the week of Nov. 12. Please indicate to your Bishop that you are strongly concerned over the willful refusal of these hospital board members to apply church principles—moral principles acknowledged by American law and custom—to a church-affiliated institution.

Charges Sought In Idaho Roundup

Lake Havasu City, Ariz. (AP) — "Wild Horse Annie" Johnston asked her fellow advisory board members Wednesday to get involved in protecting wild free-roaming horses and borros under a federal law she helped put on the books.

Specifically, she asked the National Advisory Board on Wild Free-Roaming Horses and Burros to get the Justice Department to reverse itself and bring criminal charges in a case involving wild horses trapped in Idaho and shipped to a dog food plant in Nebraska.

The request came shortly before the board adjourned its meeting for the day and the motion was tabled until Thursday. The tabling request was made by Ben Glading, former California wildlife director, who expressed belief it should be more general if it is to be considered.

"Wild Horse Annie" is Mrs. Velma B. Johnston of Reno, Nev. Years of campaigning as executive director of Wild Horse Organized Assistance earned her the nickname. The tenacious, gray-haired woman also has been credited with a part in passage of the federal law protecting the animals.

She is a member of the advisory board, which met here to draw up recommendations to the secretaries of interior and agriculture for implementing the law.

The board also inspected range damage caused by wild burros near this town on the Arizona-California border.

It heard wildlife specialists urge measures to control the burros because they damage the desert and take food and water from bighorn sheep and other native animals.

Mrs. Johnston declared that the board has taken no significant action to protect wild horses at its four meetings thus far.

"Within six weeks following its first meeting, a roundup of free-roaming horses took place in Little Lost River area in Idaho," she said. "Its brutality is well documented."

The horses were shipped early this year from Howe, Idaho, to North Platte, Neb., where they have been held pending a decision on prosecution.

Now that the Justice Department has declined to prosecute because of insufficient evidence, the remaining horses are to be shipped back to Idaho for a hearing to determine their ownership.

The law protects ownerless wild horses from being trapped on public lands and sold to dog food manufacturers.

Mrs. Johnston said that at a July meeting of the board at Billings, Mont., a member said the board shouldn't get involved in every controversial issue, "but that if something is being done of which we do not approve, we could then go into more direct involvement."

The controversial Idaho round-up, she said, "is a matter of which the board should not approve or ignore." It will be derelict of its responsibility, she said, if it doesn't ask the Justice Department to reconsider its decision.

McCauley Says 'Innocent' To Shooting Counts

Omaha (AP) — Kenneth McCauley of Macy has pleaded innocent in Federal District Court to three counts of shooting at a Bureau of Indian Affairs special officer.

McCauley is being held in the Douglas County jail in lieu of $10,000 bond.

U.S. Dist. Atty. William K. Schaphorst said the complaint charges that McCauley fired a .38 caliber pistol at Foster Webster when he and Eugene H. Trottier were investigating a disturbance at the McCauley residence in Macy.

Question Now: What Happens To Bahamas?

Nassau, Bahamas (AP) — The arrest and possible extradition to the United States of financier Robert L. Vesco has stirred fears of a possible economic downturn for the world's newest free nation.

The question now is what happens to the roughly $100 million that Vesco has reported to have pumped into the Bahamiam economy in the past two years. The financier is wanted in the United States on an indictment charging embezzlement.
